CERVERA'S FLEET SHOT TO PIECES.

SAMPSON WINS GLORIOUS VICTORY.

SANTIAGO MUST SURRENDER.

Washington, July 3. The following statement was tonight given out at the White House:

Gen. Shafter telegraphs: Playa del Este, July 3. "Early this morning I sent a demand for the immediate surrender of Santiago, threatening to bombard the city. I believe the place will be surrendered."

This contradicts the report that Gen. Shafter has fallen back.

The following despatch was received at the war department:

Playa del Este, July 3. The Siboney office confirms the statement that all the Spanish fleet except one warship is destroyed and burning on the beach. It was witnessed by Captain Smith, who told the operator. No doubt of its correctness.

Signed, Allen, Signal Officer.

Washington, July 3. The following cable despatch was given out at the White House:

Playa del Este, July 3. The destruction of Cervera's fleet is confirmed.

Signed, Allen, Lieut. Colonel.

Santiago Now Well Invested--City Cannot be Taken Without Heavy Reinforcements--American Losses About One Thousand--Spanish Casualties Will Reach Twice Our Own.

Washington, July 3. The following despatch from Gen. Shafter was received at the war department tonight:

POWERS COME TO UNDERSTANDING.

Berlin, July 3. The Wolf News Bureau has issued an official denial of the statement that Germany, France and Russia have reached an understanding relative to the Philippine islands and that international Congress will be held when the Spanish-American war is over, similar to the Berlin congress of 1878, so far as Germany is concerned. The statement that this decree was published in the Frankfurter Zeitung.

THE WEATHER.

SHOWERS AND THUNDER STORMS.

Washington, July 3. Forecast for Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont: Showers and thunder storms, cooler, westerly winds.

LOCAL FORECAST.

Boston, July 3. Fair, except probably local showers in the afternoon or evening; warmer in the interior; fresh southwesterly winds.

Washington, June 3. From the heat and carnage of the battlefield of Santiago where for the last three days the American forces have pressed forward against an entrenched enemy, Gen. Shafter today sent the following despatches, summarizing the situation:

Playa del Este, July 3—To Secretary of War, Washington.

Camp near Santiago, July 3. We have the town well invested on the north and east but with a very thin line. Upon approaching it we find it of such character and the defences so strong, it will be impossible to carry it by storm with my present force. Our loss up to date will aggregate a thousand, but list has not yet made out. Little sickness outside of exhaustion from intense heat and exertion of the battle of the day before yesterday and the almost constant fire which is kept up in the trenches. Wagon road to the rear is kept up with some difficulty on account of the rains, but I will be able to see to the present. Gen. Wheeler is seriously ill and will probably have to go to the rear today. Gen. Young also very ill, confined to his bed. Gen. Hawkins slightly wounded in foot during battle with the enemy, made last fight which was handsomely repulsed. The behavior of the troops was magnificent. Gen. Garcia reported he holds the railroad from Santiago to San Luis and had burned a bridge and removed some rails also. Lieut. Gen. Pando has arrived at Palma and that the French consul with about 600 French citizens came into his lines yesterday from Santiago. I have directed him to treat them with every courtesy possible.

Shafter, Major General.

Sec. Alger sent the following reply to Gen. Shafter.

To Gen. Shafter—The President directs me to say to you that you have the gratitude and thanks of the nation for the brilliant and effective work of your noble army on Friday, July 1. The steady valor and heroism of officers and men thrill the American people with pride. The country mourns the brave men who fell in battle. They have added new names to our roll of heroes.

R. A. Alger, Secretary of War.

WHAT COURSE TO PURSUE.

Secretary Alger was asked what course was to be pursued in view of Gen. Shafter's report of the condition of Santiago and that the government did not intend to make any of its plans public and give the enemy an opportunity of knowing what was intended. It is understood that Gen. Shafter will at once receive instructions. The war department officials have been in conference at the White House and war department.

All of Gen. Shafter's despatches were not made public for reasons of expediency. It is understood he will withdraw his lines near the sea and await reinforcements which will be sent as soon as possible. Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn is now busy arranging for transports.

Gen. Miles says the result at Santiago appears to be a draw, but a Hessian said that the withdrawal of Gen. Shafter to the highlands of Siboney near the sea would be temporary, enabling the troops to rest and prepare for future work.

Gen. Shafter would probably give up El Caney and the Plain not far from Santiago.

The despatch speaks for itself and as Adjutant General Corbin said, "tells about a desperate fight our gallant troops have been in." It was received at noon today, after a lull of thirty-six hours in the official information at the disposal of the first order it became known that the American commander had reported the defences to be so strong it would be impossible to carry them by storm with his present forces, there was momentarily the fear of deep apprehension. But this was not shared by the military authorities here. A short energetic call for attention was turned upon the situation as presented by Gen. Shafter.

INCH BY INCH THE WAY WAS FORCED.

There was neither time nor disposition to take account of what had gone before. When the fact was plain that the American army had fought its way inch by inch under a blazing sun, through a dense tropical vegetation, steadily advancing and beating back the foe, taking position after position until, as Gen. Shafter reported, the town was well invested on the north and east by the long drawn out line of the American troops. That was a sufficient tribute to the valor of our brave men and it silenced all cavil over the conditions now presented by Gen. Shafter.

It was a time for action, not for reinforcements and toward the great end of the end, every effort of the administration will be at once turned. But there was other information of different tenor coming about the same time. The American army was not alone feeling the effect of the three days' shock of arms. Definite, positive information was at hand that Santiago had been literally torn to pieces and that in the wreck and ruin of demolished buildings the Spanish casualties were fully one thousand. This was a fitting effect to any quake raised by the reports from the American lines. This information came from one of the foreign consuls stationed at Santiago, who reported to the representative of his country at Washington that he had advised with the civil officers of the Spanish government and the American army and the result of the battle was clearly shown by the action of the consul in serving out rations of provisions daily to a fellow countryman in a few hundred in number, for the last month. Evidently there was no food to buy, the Spanish military forces had taken every available pound, only by this official distribution of rations to the foreign colony could they be kept from starvation.

Their were the brief but graphic recital of the terrible effect of the American attack from land and sea. The bursting shells from our fleet had done the Wonderful Marksmanship of the American Gunners--Spanish Flag Shot Down.

Off Santiago de Cuba, July 2, via Port Antonio, Ja., and Kingston, Ja., Sunday July 3. The men on the flagship New York were a pretty tired lot after nine hours fighting yesterday, when they turned out at 4 o'clock this morning. At 5 o'clock the fleet went to general quarters, the knowledge that Morro castle was not spared created much interest and the greatest satisfaction among the gunners. Rear Admiral Sampson said to the correspondent of The Associated Press shortly before the firing commenced.

"Gen. Shafter sent me word last night that the batteries at the mouth of the harbor had fired on his troops. I am almost certain that Gen. Shafter is mistaken, as all our information shows that no guns bear shoreward. However, I thought it best to bombard again today. It will be useful and may have a moral effect that will assist the army."

With the flagship New York the eastern end of the crescent ships, the fleet stormed in shore 2000 yards from Morro until it was in a position to enfilade both the eastern batteries. At 5.40 the firing commenced. The sea was smooth and a light breeze was blowing. For the first few minutes the marksmanship of the American gunners was splendid, one of the eastern batteries being soundly punished. It not a shot was fired from it during the engagement.

A small shell from the western battery dropped around the ships but did nothing. The entire fusillade from all the battleships of the United States navy silenced the fire from the shore batteries in short order. One particular good shot from the flagship New York sent a gun out of the eastern batteries flying.

Best of All

This Grand Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla Is Permanent—Dreadful Suffering Completely Relieved.

"I was suffering with my stomach, and prescriptions did not do me any good. No one could tell what ailed me. I had a dreadful feeling in my stomach and a constant pain under my shoulder blades. Many times I was compelled to lie down flat on my back to press my shoulders against something for relief. After doctoring for months and feeling no better I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, it having been taken by some of my acquaintances with benefit. Before I had finished the first bottle I began to improve, and it was wonderful to see what a change there was in my feelings. When I had taken six bottles I was cured, and, best of all, I have never had any return of those sufferings." MRS. E. E. PHILBROOK, Frankfort, Maine. Remember

Gentlemen:—Your favor 15th received; we find this morning on our desk a very handsome advertisement from your firm which is as good as anything in the advertising line that we have ever seen. We consider this unique in its line and while we consider advertising a science in itself we think you have reached the best manner of keeping in touch with your customers. We may add that most advertisements find their way to our waste-paper basket, and we can give you no better compliment than to say that your little pamphlet will remain on our desk to be a constant reminder of the high quality of your oils.

We will further add that we have used your oils around our mills with but few exceptions, for the past ten years and we consider them the cheapest we can buy and shall continue to give you our trade.

Three Centuries Behind Americans.

Several papers dealing with the Pennsylvania coal regions appear in The Century. Henry Edward Rood, writing of "A Polyglot Community," says:

"More than one-half the total number of immigrants into the United States now coming from Austria-Hungary, Italy, Poland and Russia. While official statistics are not available, yet careful investigation leads to the belief that perhaps 50 or 60 per cent of arrivals from the countries mentioned have had no regular occupation, while possibly 30 per cent may have been servants or laborers. Five years ago the Rev. Mr. Manferdo, himself an Italian, in company with the writer made a tour of observation through the Lehigh region of Pennsylvania, and stated that in his opinion the Italians working there were about three centuries behind Americans in their standards of living—that is, in their ideas as to food, clothing, shelter, wages, work and general intelligence. Since that time there has been no improvement in the class of immigrants arriving at our ports."

Strained the Vat.

A little old woman with a sharp nose and sharper tongue was in the country grocery store buying supplies. Among other things she brought in from her cart was a basin scarred jug, which she ordered to be filled with treacle.

At last, when her purchases were completed, she began looking over the account, item by item, before paying.

"What's this?" she exclaimed. "You have charged me for two gallons and a half of treacle."

"Yes, ma'am."

"But that jug holds only two gallons."

"You must be mistaken. I measured the treacle carefully, and it took two gallons and a half to fill it."

"Well," said the old woman with a sigh, "I don't see much using having to pay for the treacle, but I do object to having the oil jug strained by your putting in half a gallon more than it will hold."—Strand Magazine.

A Bad Bargain.

The unprofitableness of some of the rush and worry of business life is neatly suggested in the following dialogue, found in one of the papers:

"Where is Jones?"

"Gone to California."

"What for?"

"To regain his health."

"How did he lose his health?"

"Earning the money to go to California."—Youth's Companion.

DESPERATE FIGHT.

greatest damage inside the city. Buildings were riddled with rifle shots and mown down with the huge shells and solid projectiles from the ships. Most sections of all, the Spanish commander, Gen. Linares, occupying a place similar to that of Gen. Shafter in the American army was seriously wounded.

SPANISH LOSSES LARGE.

This last fact had been grudgingly admitted from Madrid, but the report reaching here left no room for doubt as to the seriousness of this feature. With it was the further fact that the Spanish casualties, even behind intrenchments, run up to a thousand and was equal to that of the men who fought in the open.

With all the light furnished on the situation, official and unofficial, direct and indirect, it was apparent that each side had suffered terribly, with now a period of lull for those in responsibility to measure their conditions, bury their dead, care for their wounded and prepare for the grave conflict yet to come.

The President and his war advisers continued calm throughout the trying experiences of the day. All their attention was directed to the work of preparation. The future movements of Gen. Shafter are well established. They had been made known in his despatch, but it was deemed advisable not to make this portion public, as it would serve to advise the enemy of the American plans.

It can only be said that Gen. Shafter's forces will be strongly and favorably located by the guns of the American warships serving as an additional protection to their front.

Reinforcements will be hurried to them, which will be ample for any emergency, whether it be storm or siege. With Santiago partially wrecked and filled with a thousand dead and wounded the condition there is desperate, even critical.

There is little likelihood of any Spanish sortie in force under such circumstances but the possibility still opens that the Spanish garrison may seek relief by evacuating the city and retiring to the mountain paths to the north. But the American plan is for offensive, vigorous action, and the full resources of men and arms at the command of the country. As Gen. Miles said, 50,000 if need be will move on Santiago; if more are needed, then it will be 75,000.

The lesson of Santiago has served only to kindle a greater earnestness throughout every avenue of official life at the national capital, and there is a determination to meet heroic conditions with heroic treatment.

WAR CONFERENCE AT WHITE HOUSE.

Following the receipt of Gen. Shafter's telegram there was a hurried war conference at the White House. Secretary Alger, accompanied by Gen. Corbin, reached there a few minutes before one o'clock and were immediately closeted with the President. Secretary Alger brought the Shafter despatch with him and also a map and other data necessary for the important meeting about to take place. Gen. Corbin was with the President and the secretary for a few minutes and then hurried back to the war department, where he made public such portion of Gen. Shafter's despatch as was compatable with the public interest.

The combined American and Cuban forces now under the command of Gen. Shafter, amounted approximately, Gen. Miles said today, to 23,000 while those available for the Spaniards was probably 12,000 soldiers. These included, however, the men at Holguin, presumably about 10,000, and the force under Pinpther Spanish general amounting to about 8000 men. Gen. Miles did not say whether these two bodies of men last referred to had actually joined Gen. Linares, but the understanding is here that they have done so.

Col. Humphreys is in charge of the transport service with Shafter's army and he will send back to Tampa the vessels that can be spared, as rapidly as possible. In fact word has been received that the transports had started for the United States this morning. If possible the war department will send 15,000 men from Tampa on these transports. Six vessels have recently loaded with men, ammunition, arms, supplies, etc., and are now at Key West or on their way to reinforce Shafter's army. Included in the expedition are some batteries of artillery. In all these forces constitute about 2500 or 3000 men.

SHAFTER MAY WITHDRAW.

Gen. Miles in the course of a brief talk said today that Gen. Shafter might contemplate the withdrawal of his forces to the high lands in the direction of Siboney, where they would be near the sea. It is, however, would be a temporary expedient, enabling the officers to rest and prepare for the work ahead.

The chief hope to reach the reinforcements to Gen. Shafter so that there will be from 12,000 to 15,000 when under his command within the next ten days, or sooner, if this can be arranged. This is exclusive of the insurgents, of whom Gen. Garcia has been able to bring to Shafter's command approximately 4000 men. There are about 15,000 men and officers in the expedition that set out from Tampa less than a month ago. These have been reinforced by Gen. Duffield's command, amounting to 3000 men, and consisting of the 33d and 34th Michigan and the 9th Massachusetts regiments. The first 1300 of Gen. Duffield's brigade have been with Shafter for a week, while the remainder have just embarked.

During the last week a second expedition of large proportions was scheduled to give Garcia, carrying a good portion of Gen. Snyder's division of the Fourth corps as reinforcements for Gen. Shafter. Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn said today that seven transports were available to carry Snyder's troops and while will not say any official information on the subject, he assumed that probably 5000 of them were now on their way to join those in Santiago province. The other troops to be sent to the aid of Gen. Shafter will, according to the understanding here, be the remaining portion of Gen. Snyder's division and such other regiments now at Tampa best equipped and ready for active work. Gen. Brooke, commanding at Chickamauga, has already received instructions to have fifteen regiments prepared for immediate movement. Gen. Snyder's division, which was under orders for Santiago, included the following regiments: 11th and 19th infantry of the regular army, the 1st District of Columbia, the 2d New York and 5th Maryland, the 6th Pennsylvania, the 157th Indiana and the 1st Ohio.

Gen. Garretson's brigade now at Camp Alger, Va., is under orders also for Santiago. Garretson's brigade is composed of the sixth Illinois, 6th Massachusetts and the 8th Ohio volunteer regiments.

The army officials feel that they have profited by the experience in preparing the first expedition, and say better time will be made with those to follow.

The Mohawk and the Mississippi, two vessels of the American transport line, just acquired by the government, have facilities for about 1500 men and animals and probably will be used in sending aid to Shafter.

They are now at New York under orders for Tampa.

CONFIRMATION

Madrid, July 3.—4 P. M. Private despatches from Santiago gives the following details:

Gen. Shafter's army, composed of 17,000 infantry and 82 siege guns, of various calibre, attacked the Spanish positions before Santiago, 6000 rebels under Garcia assisting them. The Spaniards had only 2500 men, partly volunteers.

"Our troops fought with heroic courage. The battle lasted three hours, and the Spanish were then compelled to abandon the trenches and to fall back on Santiago. The retreat was conducted in perfect order.

"Our losses were heavy and the enemy's were enormous. The list of our wounded includes Gen. Linares, Col. Ordonez, and Commanders Amadod and Arrais, the latter being Gen. Linares' aide-de-camp.

"The American attack upon El Caney was very severe. The position was defended by Gen. Vara de Rey with 500 men. The enemy was at first repulsed but ultimately renewed the attack, the result being unknown."

A later despatch says: "The Americans fought eight against one. The Spaniards defended themselves heroically. Our wounded are numerous, including Commanders Vara de Rey and Dottinguez. The struggle is becoming difficult, 2000 Spaniards having to meet 25,000 of the enemy.

10 P. M. A despatch to El Imparcial from Havana says that Major Dominguez was killed in the fighting at El Caney.

NO DEFINITE ACTION YET THIS WEEK.

Washington, July 3. The Senate will be in session on the Fourth of July, an unusual sitting, but deemed necessary by the friends of the Hawaiian resolutions. It is probable that the week will be consumed in a discussion of the resolutions unless advance is reached near the middle of the week, which some of the senators hope. No other business will be considered that tends to any extended debate until there is a vote on the Hawaiian resolutions. Of course any war legislation which might be necessary would be considered, but there is no expectation of any emergency demands.

THE HOUSE.

Washington, July 3. The House will not be in session tomorrow, adjournment having been taken until Tuesday. There is no definite program determined for the week. The conference report upon the deficiency bill will be considered Tuesday, and it may provoke considerable debate. The naval affairs committee has a number of bills which it desires to bring up, and a day may be given to it. The naval personnel measure is the most important. If it can be reached under a gill of committees an effort will be made to take up the anti-scalping bill. The bill to incorporate the International American Bank will follow the deficiency bill conference report and continue before the House until disposed of.

THE ROYAL SCOTS ARRIVE.

Portland, Me., July 3. The Royal Scots of Montreal arrived in this city this morning and will take part in the Dual Celebration tomorrow, America's national holiday and the fiftieth anniversary of the building of the Grand Trunk railway. The Scots are guests of the city and elaborate plans for their entertainment have been made. They attended church in a body this morning, went on a sail down the bay this afternoon and this evening were taken to Riverton on the electric. There will be the feature of the grand parade tomorrow and are assured of an ovation all along the route.

"Whisky," said Pat. "Oi swipped it from the private car dat was here."

"Pat, the brass collars are going to miss it by and by. You better hide it," said the first speaker.

"Let's take this hand car and run down the track a ways and bury it," said Pat.

The two got a hand car and told the foreman they were going down the track to get some potatoes for dinner. Away they were down the track about a mile.

"This is a good place," said Pat. The two got off the car and buried the bottle near the track.

"How will we know where we buried it?" said Pat.

"Cut a notch in the side of the car," said his companion. So a notch was cut in the side of the car above where the bottle was buried and the two tarriers returned to their work. That evening they decided to go and dig up the bottle. Away they went.

"Where is the place?" asked Pat.

"I cut a notch in the car to show," said the other.

"And be yours I forgot all about it and moved the car," said Pat.—Topeka State Journal.

One of Miller's Anecdotes.

Froude and Kingsley were special favorites of Professor Max Muller, according to his recently published memoirs. Kingsley's refusal to pray for rain—or, as his friend expressed it, to consult his sacred office to that of a rainmaker or a medicine man—reminds the professor of a story told to Kingsley by an American:

"In America we manage these things better. A clergyman in a village on the frontier between two of our states prayed for rain. The rain came and flooded the ground to an extent that the young lambs in the neighboring state caught cold and died. An action was brought against the clergyman for the mischief he had done, and he and his parishioners were condemned to pay damages to the sheep farmers. They never prayed for rain after that."—London News.

Uncle Sam's Paymaster Comes Around and Goddens Their Hearts With His Money.

Subscription Money Doing Good.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Camp Geo. H. Thomas, June 28, 1898.

The hearts of the Maine boys will soon be gladdened by two months' gold cash. Uncle Sam's bounty for serving in the army. The paymaster's staff has already arrived and are busily engaged in preparations to deal the long green out over the camp. A conservative estimate gives $2,200,000 which will be distributed among the soldiers.

Wolf eyed sharpers and greedy tradesmen are waiting in eager impatience for this harvest but they must wait outside the limits of the posts, for no such people are allowed to pass the cordon of guards.

The far famed midway can be only reached now days by means of a pass and a typical western boom town is looking very much busted at present.

Your Uncle Sam is very careful what his soldiers buy and as a result the health regard has bedfered fifty per cent.

Only milk is allowed to be peddled in the park in the beverage line with such eatables as sandwiches and cakes. Well, sarpent lemonade is tabooed because it would hurt the canteen monopoly.

The glorious Fourth of July is not to be like any plain old day here for in spite of a brilliant celebration to take place in Chattanooga only four passes will be issued to each company in the First Maine and it will seem a good deal like some ordinary unfuzzled week day. Drill may be suspended and a kind of field day held in athletic contests just to keep up the spirits of the plucky old boys in each company who will stay at home.

This camp is getting to be a great deal like home in many ways to judge from the little additional comforts the men are contriving. Officers are putting in floors in their tents, plain Tommy Atkins is building a bed or a favorite seat. Papa Murch has a canvas home for his grub supplies and everyone is settling down for a long stay here.

But to relate Maine has not been included in the 27 regiments which will leave in a short time for the front, probably to make up the Porto Rican expedition, and now the consensus of opinion is that it will be months before another expedition will leave Camp Thomas.

Report tonight, however, are that the order for immediate departure has been cancelled to await adequate transportation from the coast, and that Gen. Brooks will go in command of the corps.

The hospital of the First Maine has received generous contributions from time to time from home people, and in no other way could more benefit be derived. Let the good work go on, there is plenty of chance to hit the mark, when hits will count. In some regiments, noticeably from Iowa, the cities and towns have raised large sums of money for the benefit of the companies from their place. Seventy companies in the 52nd Iowa have $200 each given by sympathetic home stayers for the comfort of the soldier boys sweltering in the heat of Georgia.

Here is a little incident which shows what Maine's officers and men are made of. Company G's street is forlorn and deserted for Capt. Gowen's men have gone on outpost duty for a week. As they marched to their posts, had then went to work policing quarters, and putting things slick and spanky. Indiana captain who has just been returned, sauntered up to the Maine captain and inquired:

"What are you doing captain, policing the place? Why no other troops have done so before."

"Never mind if they haven't," responded Capt. Gowen, "we don't do things this way in the Maine regiment. Our men are used to cheap quarters, and are old not decked behind Lookout Mountain the offending sticks and rubbish had been removed.

Visitors are surprised at the order and system in the camp proper, and good Maine has been mistaken for regulars; but we will be left just the same, regulars or no regulars, and that makes the boys sore. Inferior effective regiments will soon be at the front.

There are no kicks now days about the rations and grub, for Lieut. Allen and Papa Murch have things running some, food and another company cooks who is satisfactory. Fresh beef is served five times a week, and salt beef or "sow belly" as it is appropriately dubbed here, the remainder. A ration in man's allowance for an entire day, and stands. Of course there is enough the company quartermasters draw for the whole mess, where as in active service each man would look after his own grub.

Hunted of the hurrying pots and rough eteries of old days, each company mess now has what is styled a Buzzacott oven. A combination boiler, baker, cooker and steamer—a perfect sense box, which by the way than has used to bake gigantic roasts of bake, mutton, corn or beans. The fire is under an iron cylinder resembling a stove, and there are boilers and pots, all fitting inside one another, so can be given the greatest economy of space when packed for transportation, the whole measuring 30 inches four feet long by three and with a foot of depth.

Captain O'Neal, acting surgeon of the regiment, wishes the people to contribution called to the good that the clothing and goods already received here for the hospital is doing. The reason of these increased facilities for men have been sent to Denslow Hospital for a days, and the sick kindly there will be brought back and cared for in the regiment. Medical supplies were received from a soldier boy to the cared for among his friends. A large quantity of food and medical supplies were received from Portland yesterday. Report that city has done practically everything in supplying the hospital, only one other city being represented, is the good work and

FISHING AMONG HEELS.

The Badly Embarrassed Youth Caught Scientifically at Each Dive.

A modest Cleveland youth, an Adelbert undergraduate, boarded a car the side car a few evenings ago, and when he seated himself carelessly dropped his small gripsack on the floor behind his feet. Presently the car began to fill up. Most of the new passengers were girls, and as they came in one by one the Adelbert man crowded along a little and to get away from his gripsack. There were at least half a dozen girls at his left, and it was in that direction that his grip was located.

Pretty soon the car neared his stopping place, and the Adelbert man bethought himself of his baggage. He put his hand to the floor—it wasn't there—that is, the grip wasn't there. He felt a little way to the left; he couldn't reach it.

Then he straightened up.

"Pardon me," he said, with a somewhat inflamed countenance, "but I have a grip somewhere under here." And he dove down again.

All he could feel was dainty boot heels, two of them badly run down. He reached a little farther. Another boot heel. The girls began to wriggle uneasily.

Up came the young man again.

His countenance was still more inflamed. This time he arose to his feet.

"It's here somewhere," he murmured. "If you don't object, I'll try again." Down he went and clawed along still farther to the left.

"I've got it," he muttered.

He pulled, but it didn't come.

"One moment," he said, "here it is."

"No, it isn't," piped a shrill soprano.

There was a brief struggle, and then the bashful youth realized that he had hold of the young woman's foot.

He stood up at this with a despairing glare.

Perhaps the girls were moved to pity by his hopeless look; perhaps they didn't like the way the other passengers were giggling. Anyway they shuffled around and soon produced the missing bag. And the youth with the scarlet face scooted from the car.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HOW THEY WOULD SPEND $.

Novel Experiment as to What Boys and Girls Would Do With $5.

A very interesting experiment with school children was recently made in Springfield, Mass., by Dr George E. Dawten. He presented 1,307 of them, nearly equally divided as to sex, to write an answer to the query, "If you had $5, all your own, what would you do with it?" Nearly one-half of them (44 per cent) answered that they would deposit the money in a bank, 13.8 per cent would buy clothing, 2.2 per cent would buy something to eat, 15.3 per cent would buy toys and other means of amusement, 2.1 per cent would buy jewelry and finery, nine-tenths of 1 per cent would buy firearms, 1.7 per cent would spend it for travel, 14 per cent would spend it for others and 6 per cent would buy books, etc.

The disposition to save shown by so many of the children is attributed by Dr. Dawten largely to their susceptibility to suggestion. While the children do not realize the full significance of saving, the idea has been engrafted upon their minds and is bound to have its influence. In noting the percentage of those who would buy clothing it should be remembered, he says, that many of the children were in urgent need of something better to wear. Those who voted for something to eat were mostly under 7 years of age. In regard to travel, the figures show that as children grow older the desire to go out into the world increases rapidly, reaching its height at about the beginning of adolescence.

The desire shown by the boys for firearms is an expression of the hunting instinct that awakens when they are 10 or 11 years of age. At that age boys like to get hold of books of hunting and adventure. The tendency to buy books increases steadily as the children grow older. This class numbers about twice as many girls as boys. The class which manifests a feeling of altruism also numbers more girls than boys, showing that the greater generosity of women is strikingly manifest even at an early age.—New York Post.

Log, No., U. S. A.

On looking at a late map of Missouri one will find the name "Log" as a postoffice at the extreme western end of Newton county and about eight miles west of Grand Falls. A few days ago Deputy United States Marshal Short had occasion to serve papers from the Oklahoma federal court on several people residing in that direction, and he was given their postoffice address as Log. As it was not a familiar name in this vicinity he wondered about the bills until he came to the end of a log house extending from the brush and concluded that it was the place he was searching for. He asked for the postmaster, and a woman replied that she was the official, and upon inquiry as to her name the officer also learned that the woman of the premises to be subpoenaed. She was also asked why her office was called Log, and she stated that she didn't know exactly, but that when the office was first established it was called "Log house," which the postoffice department considered too lengthy, so it dropped the "house."—Kansas City Journal.

PITTSFIELD NEWS.

Successful Balloon Ascension, Base Ball and Races

[Special to Whig and Courier]

Pittsfield, July 2 Pittsfield has been thronged with people today attracted here by the first races of the season and the balloon ascension. Many came on the trains both from the east and west and a special train was run over the S & M R road returning after the races.

A game of baseball was played on the grounds during the afternoon between the Newport and Pittsfield teams which resulted in a victory to the home team of 14 to 6 scores

The balloon ascension by Prof C C Bonney took place about half past four and was a grand success A light southwest breeze was blowing which carried the balloon across the river a short distance below the railroad crossing The parachute drop was made from a great height, the aeronaut alightings in the Hinckley field so called and the balloon coasted down in the woods just south of the Maine Central railroad on the east side of the river

The races began about 30 and some very close heats were trotted The Pittsfield silver band dispensed music between the races This is the first time the boys have appeared in town in their new uniforms

Lillian McAloon of Bangor acted as starter and John Stewart Frank R. Thatcher and Lyman Crosby were timers L O Haskell was clerk

Nearly three-fourths of an hour was consumed in scoring for the first heat of the three minute class and the second heat was delayed by the bursting of a tire on A Palmer's sulkey The first heat was not very exciting, Ruby taking it very easily, but the last four heats were very close and exciting Bud Wilkes led the horses under the wire in the fourth and fifth heats, but was set back in each for running, the race was consequently taken by Maggie Horsford

The 2.21 class though very exciting, was won in three straight heats by Madras

The bicycle race was won by Frank Leslie Parkman of Hartland

Chickamauga National Military Park

Chickamauga July 3 Today was another quiet Sunday at the park The sun poured down intensely hot but a good breeze was a source of great relief from the heat The regiments all spent the day quietly in camp except that some of the troops by permission went upon the mountain to spend the day

Later in the afternoon an order was received from the war department to Gen Brooke to designate about 20 000 men for immediate departure for the South and at once there was great excitement and bustle in the camp Gen Brooke declined to make public the order but it is understood that he has selected the first division of the First corps and two brigades of the Second division to be moved at once The first division is composed of the following regiments First brigade 1st Kentucky, 3d Wisconsin 5th Illinois

Second brigade, 4th Ohio 3d Illinois 4th Pennsylvania

Third brigade, 10th Pennsylvania, 2d Wisconsin, 3d Kentucky

Second division First brigade, 31st Michigan 160th Indiana 1st Georgia

Second brigade 6th Ohio 158th Indiana 1st West Virginia

The regiments of the 1st division were inspected this evening and are ready to move They have been kept busy since the order to prepare for the field, some a week ago getting rid of their excess of equipment and clothing and it will require very little time to break camp In anticipation of this order the railroads have been accumulating cars at this point for a week The sidings and switch yards of the southern and southwestern Atlantic railroads are crowded with Pullman cars It is stated tonight that there are 30 trains of 20 cars each on the tracks here ready to transport troops The regiments will embark at Rossville and Ringgold to insure speedy transportation as was done when the regulars were moved southward it is thought by the railroad authorities that 15 000 men can be moved in two days It is understood at this hour that three regiments will move tomorrow morning

RELIEF FOR THE WOUNDED.

Sidney Cuba Saturday July 2 7 30 P M by the Associated Press despatch boat Dauntless via Port Antonio Jamaica and Kingston, Sunday July 3 2 50 P M The fighting on the right of our line this afternoon developed unexpectedly and for some hours almost as severe a battle as yesterday (Friday) when Gen Lawton was assaulting El Caney

The Spanish made an attack in force upon our position pouring in volley after volley in quick succession and with remarkable regularity Our return fire was certainly effective and continued strong after the Spanish volleys had become rarer and less heavy

Meanwhile the batteries on Grimes hill kept booming away at the middle of the enemy's line materially aiding the flanking movement The shelling from the Spanish fort was less active and apparently with but little concern

At this hour a report has just reached here that Gen Lawton (died) by other regiments, sent him early in the afternoon has returned the enemy's left and has troops already in the city where almost a hand to hand encounter is going on in the streets

The situation when the Associated Press correspondent left the front, as shown in an earlier despatch was such that the capture of the city tonight (Saturday) would not be surprising although Gen Shafter himself when the correspondent left him three hours ago, did not expect it.

Gen Shafter, however sent word this afternoon to Gen Calixto Garcia that the surrender of the city would not long be delayed

A FAMOUS STEEPLEJACK.

Mr E H Baron the carpenter and builder whose name is famous as a steeplejack has completed the work of replacing the spire on the Fairmount Street church steeple When he took it down recently he put in its place a flag which has attracted much attention Mr Barton is possessed of cool nerve and cool daring and has performed many feats high up in the air which would give ordinary men a shaking of the heart to merely contemplate. He has had some intensely exciting and trying experiences also In one fire he saved two men's lives by his quick thought and cool action He is scorched that the hook holding one end of the staging was bending out straight and in a moment the staging would probably fall. He coolly spoke to the other men telling them to get down quietly and by cautious movements they succeeded in saving themselves from a possibly terrible fate Mr Barton has made a specialty of most of the city church steeples and has thus far met with no serious accident

A river tragedy was discovered on Saturday by John Wilkey and D S Higgins of Hampden at Hampden Corner and the news aroused much discussion there

The victim was Miss Kate Akers a Northampton, presumably of Cuttybellow N B

She settled from Hampden Saturday about noon in the small school house in Dart Nothing more seems to be known about his movements or the accident which befell him until Sunday when she was found wrecked and capsized in the river by the two men Wilkey started to tow her in when they found the body of a man entangled in the wreck

Coroner Littlefield of this town was notified Letters were found in her pocketbook from a friend in South Brooksville addressed to Cuttybellow Andrews is a massive structure built of stone

The river was dragged to no avail It is expected the interment will be in Brooksville will be buried in Hampden today

Bangor, July 1, 1898.

A Terrific Battle.

Saturday and Sunday were anxious days all over the country and especially in Washington. It was known Saturday night that terrific fighting had taken place during the day, but details were lacking.

The latest news received at this writing is contained in a bulletin from Washington saying that General Shafter reports that he has Santiago well invested on the north and east, but his lines are so thin and the defences so strong that it will be impossible to carry the city by storm with his present force. His losses are reported at a thousand.

It is difficult to judge the situation accurately at this distance with the meagre information at hand, but it certainly looks as though the obstacles to be overcome in the capture of Santiago had been underestimated. It was announced a day or two ago that General Shafter said he could take the city in forty-eight hours, but such an attack would involve the severe loss of men. Under these conditions it was supposed that he would delay until his heavy guns were in a position to reduce the defences. What has led to the determination to take the city by storm is not known at this writing, but it appears from Gen. Shafter's despatch that his present force is not adequate for the completion of the work so gallantly pushed forward under the galling fire of the heavily entrenched Spanish soldiery.

It would now seem that it will be necessary to send forward reinforcements, move up the siege guns and destroy the defenses of the city before it will be possible for the American forces to occupy. The Spanish losses were very heavy in killed and wounded and in addition to these losses our forces captured a good many prisoners.

Our Gallant Army.

While people have been sweltering here at home their thoughts have constantly been with the gallant army engaging in desperate enemy under the tropical skies of Cuba. While with us the mere idea of exertion has been intolerable the army of invasion has been in the midst of the harvest time of fighting. General Shafter reports that the action of the men composing his command has been admirable. The heat of the sun and the heat of battle have proved insufficient to weaken the superb spirit of the American soldiery. The country will mourn the brave men whose lives have been sacrificed in this war, but as Secretary Alger wired the commanding General their names have been added to the immortal list of heroes. Nothing but the strongest kind of defences has prevented our forces from occupying Santiago. Since the army landed it has steadily progressed toward the city, driving the enemy before it, notwithstanding their stubborn resistance. Entrenched behind these defences the Spaniards have simply succeeded in delaying the downfall of the city for a few days.

A Healthy Army.

The news from Gen. Shafter as to the health of his American soldiers in Cuba is in cheerful contrast to hearing Spanish reports of the outbreak of smallpox, yellow fever, black plague and what not which Madrid and Havana pretend to believe inflict our camps. These Spanish reports are to be expected. The Spanish try to accordant to their light, aside from the fact of the wish being father to the bogus news. Grossly ignorant and indifferent to the simplest hygienic and sanitary precautions, the Spanish soldiery naturally think of an American army in terms of their own. With poor food, superstition and Oriental fatalism they allow their soldiers to half a victim to all the infectious ailments. But that is not the way Uncle Sam's sanitary experts in the army, navy and marine hospital service conduct a campaign in war or peace.

Climate and local conditions allowing, in a certain that I dense will be kept at a minimum in the army of invasion, and that Spanish hopes that fevers will fight for them will come to naught. Knowing the prevalence of diseases among Spanish soldiers has been largely due to Spanish criminal indifference to health regulations, no part of the Cuban campaign has been given such attention as that of guarding against the diseases incident to a campaign in Cuba and in Cuban waters. So far, therefore, as the equipped medical experts of the United States can do it, diseases will be fought all along the line.

OLD REPRESENTATIVE,

Pen Portrait by Murat Halstead.

We reproduce by request from the columns of Harper's Weekly the following pen portrait of the Representative of the Fourth District written by the distinguished journalist, Murat Halstead:

Conspicuously, one of the public men who have for many years in national affairs conferred attractive distinction upon the State of Maine is Charles A. Boutelle. His wholesome personality is engaging, and in the breezy dash and steady glow of his energies appear his inheritance of seamanship, and the characteristics of his ocean education, that laid the foundation for his varied, laborious and brilliant career. He has served in and for the navy in war and peace, including the battles of his country as a naval officer, promoted to a lieutenancy—as far as a volunteer could go—for gallant conduct in blockading the United States steamer Sassacus in the engagement with the rebel ram Albemarle, and as a member of Congress, foremost in the creation of the new navy, bringing to the task a rare practical intelligence that was invaluable.

Charles A. Boutelle, son of a New England sea-captain, was born at Deanfield, Maine, February 9, 1839. He attended public school and Yarmouth Academy, and then followed the sea, as his father had done, instead of going to college. He was a volunteer in the naval service in 1862, and assigned to the Pau Jones, of the South Atlantic Squadron, taking part in the blockade of Charleston, and commanding a howitzer battery at St. Johns Bluff. He was master's mate and ordnance officer of the Sassacus in the desperate engagement with the Albemarle—an incident of celebrity in rebel operations. Lieutenant-Commander Roe recommended him for the promotion he got, saying he was as cool and fearless in battle as in general exercise." The advance to the highest grade open to volunteers was made about weeks after the engagement. In 1864, at the age of twenty-six, Lieutenant Boutelle was placed in command of a division of vessels occupying Mississippi Sound. He had volunteered from the Louisiana service for what turned out to be the famous attack on Mobile, and his vessel was first to break through the obstructions in the channel. When the war was over he commanded a steamer running between Washington and New York and was engaged for a time with a shipping commission house in New York city. In 1866, while on brief furlough, he met and afterwards became affianced to one of Maine's loveliest daughters, whose father, Adjutant General John L. Hodgdon, organized the military forces of the State throughout the war and she waited for him until he had completed his service in the country, when they were married in May, 1869. He has always regarded the mission of the greatest blessing of his life, the chief enjoyments of which have been found in the domestic circle, and in one overwhelming sorrow came with the sudden death of his beautiful and devoted wife in 1892. After twenty-six years of ideal companionship. The death of Mrs. Boutelle occurred suddenly, June 28, at their home in Bangor, where he continues to reside, with his three daughters, Grace, Ella, Beth and Jane. Having a strong inclination toward political journalism, it was by Mr. Blaine's advice that he made, without previous newspaper experience, the venture of assuming in 1870, the editorship of a daily paper the Bangor Whig and Courier. The paper steadily assumed more and more positive leadership of Republican politics in that section, and became widely known. Mr. Boutelle's intimacy with and ardent friendship and admiration for Mr. Blaine were never interrupted until the death of the great leader. His first nomination for Congress just ten years after he assumed editorship of the Whig, was due to his prominence in exposing and defeating what was known as the Garfield contract conspiracy of 1879-80, and while there was nearly 5,000 adverse majority in the district at the previous election, he lacked only 855 of election.

He has had the signal fortune of having been nominated for Congress seven times in the largest and most populous district in Maine by three over having a vote cast against him in convention. Mr. Boutelle was a district delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1876, was president of the Maine Blaine Club at the National Convention in 1880, represented Maine on the Republican National Committee at the National Convention of 1884, that nominated Blaine and Logan, was delegate at large and chairman of the Maine delegation to the Republican National Convention in 1888, to which he read the address to keep Mr. Blaine from accepting the nomination as a candidate, and was a member of the Republican State Committee of Maine from 1878 to 1882. Throughout his career as a Congressman and national politician he has continued the connection with the Bangor paper, and in a general sense has control of its columns. In the Congress from the Forty-fifth to the present he has been the leading Republican member of the Committee on Naval Affairs, and in the transforming the Fifty-first Congress, in which he was related, and secured the passage of the new shipbuilding for the first time orders battleships for the new navy, and for the commerce destroyers Columbia and Minneapolis, reckoned to be the fastest on the seas. He has also been the active champion of the policy that has resulted in the establishment of the great steel armor and gun-forging plants at Bethlehem, Midvale and Homestead, the development of the unequaled gun factory at Washington, D. C., and the development of the ship-building works at Philadelphia, San Francisco, Bath and Newport News, where modern war ships, unexcelled in power, speed and armament, are constructed upon American designs and materials produced in our own country. Mr. Boutelle's service on the Naval Committee of the House covers the whole period of construction of the new navy. When he became a member of Congress, in December, 1883, we had no modern steel war-ships afloat. Secretary Chandler had contracted with John Roach for the construction of the Chicago, Atlanta, Boston and Dolphin, aggregating 4,383 tons, and they were begun in July of that year.

We have already in commission about 70,000 tons of modern war-ships of the finest type, and when the vessels now under construction are completed, in the fall of 1898, we shall have a modern navy of more than 182,000 tons, embracing four first-class and two second-class battleships believed to be the most powerful in the world, six armored coast-defence ships of the Monitor type, one ram, and twenty-seven cruisers, including twelve the most powerful armored cruisers afloat, and the two fastest cruisers. Our navy will be seventh in size, and first class in fighting qualities. This accomplishment within the period of ten years is remarkable in view of the fact that when we began we had to buy armor, gun metal, shafting, and other material abroad, while now every ounce of it is produced and fashioned on our soil. In 1886 it was seriously proposed to buy naval engines abroad, on the ground that we could not produce them at home. Today our naval engineers have set the pace for the world. The evolution in marine engineering has been marvelous.

The Powhatan, deemed a fine war-steamer in her day, was built in 1850, and was in commission when the new navy was begun. Her speed was less than twelve knots. The Columbia, which has made 22.80 knots, carries more than ten times the boiler pressure of the Powhatan, with engines turning more than eight times as fast, driving three screws instead of paddle-wheels, developing eighteen times as much power, and driving a ship more than twice that fast. Under the speed, she does it with machinery of little more than one-fourth as much weight and space per indicated horse-power. The advance development is equally striking from the cast-iron nine and eleven inch and fifteen-inch smooth-bore guns of the war period to the high-power steel rifles weighing more than sixty tons and throwing enormous projectiles more than a mile.

Protesting against the bill of the House against the proposal to buy naval engines abroad Mr. Boutelle said:

"I believe that the bureaux of our Navy Department are capable today of furnishing all fine models and excellent designs for the hulls, engines and armament of modern war ships as can be produced anywhere under the sun."

In less than seven years he had the satisfaction of seeing this declaration vindicated by the finest and fastest war-ships at sea, and Bethlehem, Midvale and the Washington gun-factories rank with the best. Insisting upon the use of American production in war-ship building, Mr. Boutelle, in July, 1886, said:

"I regard as one of the primarily important features the re-establishment in this country of the machinery and plant and the hammers that are necessary to furnish the material out of which the navy can be constructed. The establishment of a navy for a nation like ours is not accomplished when we have simply obtained ships. We want to have the ability here to construct ships. That is of infinitely more importance than the question of whether we shall have a few ships at this time."

It is estimated that the new navy now completed and authorized will have cost when work now in hand is completed in 1898, about $60,000,000 for the twelve or thirteen years' period of construction, of which almost $27,000,000 was applied in the two years of the Fifty-first Congress, which also authorized the three first-class battleships and the two fastest cruisers. The use of the picket and Harveying process of hardening armor was introduced by Commodore Folger while Boutelle headed the Naval Committee, and a remarkable incident was that the chairman, Boutelle, obtained, after the passage of the regular appropriation of over $30,000,000 for the navy, the unanimous passage of a joint resolution giving the Secretary $1,000,000 to secure a supply of nickel ore—this on his simple word that the committee agreed on its importance.

In the history of the Confederate States Navy, Lieutenant-Commander John W. Moore, reports of the Sassacus and Albemarle fight:

"Next astern, Commander Roe, of the Sassacus, selected his opportunity, and with open throttles and a speed of about eight knots (about ten knots) struck the Albemarle squarely, just abaft her start board beam, cutting every timber in the vicinity of the impact to creek and complain, but not give way. The pressure from her—the Sassacus'—revolving wheel was so powerful as to force the deck of the ironclad several inches below the surface of the water, and create a momentary impression that she was sinking. The crew became alarmed, and were beginning to be stricken, when the stern voice of the undismayed Cook checked disorder.

"There was a desperate struggle between the two vessels. A boiler of the Sassacus was penetrated with deadly results. The Albemarle's iller broke when she was rammed, the smoke-stack riddled so that bacon and lard were burned to raise steam, and the vessel leaked so that she would finally be saved at the landing. This was fought by a wooden boat, the Sassacus, against an ironclad. Albemarle's Lieutenant-Commander Roe said, in his official report:

"I gives me special pleasure to speak of the gallantry and devoted bearing of the officers and men. The maintenance of the fight with the guns after the frightful disaster to the boiler was worthy the proudest day of our naval history."

OFFICIALS HURRY MEDICAL ASSISTANCE TO SHAFTER

Immediately upon receiving Gen. Shafter's telegram concerning his ill health and wounded at Santiago, Surgeon General Sternberg, of the army, called on Gen. Van Heisen, the surgeon of the navy, and the two held a long conference. Fortunately the ambulance ship Solace is now in the vicinity of Santiago and she will be utilized. While the Solace is designed primarily for the use of the fleet, she will be put at the disposal of the army whenever that may be necessary. The navy and army ships will be used interchangeably.

Hurried preparations are being made to send Gen. Shafter the medical assistance asked for. The hospital ship relief which was, I believe, undergoing a thorough overhauling at New York, is about ready to start for Santiago. She will leave today.

Secretary Alger is authority for the statement that no additional troops will be sent from Camp Alger to Santiago before 6 6th or 9th of the month. The reason for this is that the auxiliary cruisers Yale and Harvard, which were added for the purpose of transporting the troops to Cuba, will not be ready to start on the next trip for the island before this date. The change was necessitated by reason of the fact that instead of returning direct to Newport News, it was found expedient to have the Yale come to New York. The reason for the delay in the change in the program was made in order to allow the Yale to take a number of sick and wounded soldiers from Santiago for treatment in the more northern cities. The authorities of the war department have decided to have the troops of Gen. Henry's division which have been ordered to Santiago remain at Camp Alger until the steamer is at Newport News ready to take them to Santiago without subjecting them to any unnecessary delay at Newport News.

The recent celebration in Paris on the birth of Michelet, the Minister of Public Instruction had selections made from the works of the historian and poet, suitable for schools and presented a hundred thousand copies to the lyceas and colleges of the country.

BASE BALL NOTES.

Cooley, Lafoe and Lauder made ten of the twelve hits made by Philadelphia against Cincinnati on Wednesday.

The report that Doyle's sickness is a cover for trouble between him and Earl Wagner is probably without reason. Doyle looked the sick man when he was in Boston.

What unclenching batsmen those "Phillies" are when they get started! The Cincinnatis must have thought they were facing some rapid-fire guns Thursday. "Billy" Shettal he must have a rabbit's foot for the "Phillies" have made a glorious record since he took charge.

President Young has appointed John H. Gaffney to his staff of league umpires. It is said Presidents Soden and Brush recommended a trial for the veteran, in consideration of his work in the college games. Gaffney will report today and may replace Heydler.

The Philadelphia club offered "Ned" Hanlon half of the gross receipts if he would transfer the Fourth of July games to Philadelphia. He says he declined the offer for the good of the game and trusts that Baltimore patrons will show their appreciation. Chicago also wants the Baltimore games transferred to the Windy City. A Saturday and Sunday game would thus be played and as the Chicago fans are drawing large crowds the Baltimore club would make big money by the change.

Again the story comes from Cleveland that President Robison is ready to sell his club to the highest bidder. He says that the only way to make baseball profitable in Cleveland is to have Sunday games. And as such games are out of the question he proposes to give up baseball and attend to his street railway interests in Cleveland. The Clevelands, it is said, will finish the season and then Robison will sell the team outright, or the individuals will be sold to the clubs which will pay the best prices.

Jimmie Collins has failed to hit safely in 11 of 60 games. Up to Thursday he had 73 hits, with a total of 103 bases.

Bobby Lowe has not made an error in 14 games. He has played 43 errorless games this season.

Boston has played seven games with New York and has won three.

When Hanlon let Jack Doyle go he evidently knew his business. Doyle has not been taking proper care of himself of late and his ball playing has caused Mr. Wagner several deep thoughts. Now he is anxious to trade his man for a player and cash, principally cash.

Including Wednesday's game, Boston had lost three of four games to Cleveland. In none of these three games did the Indians make more than eight hits off the Boston pitchers, the aggregate being 19. Cleveland made only two fielding errors in the four games.

N. E. Young has accepted an invitation from A. H. Soden to visit the Maine lakes next week. While waiting for a nibble, the two old baseball diplomats incidentally can swap opinions about the present staff of umpires. Mr. Young is a good listener and might be impressed with the idea of trying out eyesight before giving their berths on his official staff.

Fred Dog is still at New Bedford flashing that diamond ring, while the backers of the old club sich at the thought of what might have been.

It looked at one time as though Brooklyn had a walkover for the championship, but now both Fall River and Pawtucket have a good show.

Stouch, the Pawtucket second baseman, is a copy of Delehanty of the Philadelphia team, and plays second base in about the same style as Del used to.

Fine manipulating of the schedule and other moves in baseball science have allowed Chelsbeach a good team, to hold the lead almost from the start. Only luck, however, will give the Brush boys the pring unless at least two new men, and good stickers of that, are added to the bunch.

Around Khasiod of Bokhara, known as "the Rothschild of Central Asia," is probably the wealthiest Jew in the Trans-Caspian possessions of Russia. He is an importer of silverware, and he aims now to establish an agency of his business in Hudburg. He is the leader of his co-religionists in Bokhara, where the Jews are numerous and well rooted, though, like the so-called Mullins of British Indian subjects in the Khanate, they have to pay double taxes. They appear to thrive and make money and are on the best of terms with the Emir's Kush-Begi, who certainly appears desirous of maintaining friendly relations with them, and does not hesitate to invite them to his table on festive and other occasions. Even at the religious initiation of his two sons this high functionary thought the ceremony incomplete without the presence of twenty representatives of the Jews, headed by "the Rothschild of Central Asia."

A correspondent of "The Chicago Record" the other day met a cadet, who is still a student at the Naval Academy, and asked if he knew Construction Hobson. "Yes, he has been my teacher for two years. I know him well." "What sort of a fellow is he?" "Wheels in his head," was the laconic reply. "Triple-expansion crank." "Know his business?" "Oh bet he does! Nobody knows it any better than he."

It is still undecided question whether King Menelek of Abyssinia will attend the Paris Exposition of 1900, but it is said to be certain that he will make a trip to Jerusalem in that year, in order to find, if possible, the spot where the Queen of Sheba had her interview with Solomon. He claims direct descent from the Queen of Sheba.

Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, president of Brown university, was asked if there was any truth in a report that the superintendency of Chicago's public schools has been tendered him. He refused to say that he had ever heard the report, and positively declined to admit that he had been considering such an offer. It is known, however, that he has been considering an offer for the past month, and it is stated on high authority that he will probably accept the position, affairs at Brown not being entirely satisfactory to him. The position carries with it a salary of $6,000.

"THE RIDDLE OF THINGS THAT ARE."

We walk in a world where no man reads
The riddle of things that are,
From a tiny fern in the valley's heart
To the light of the largest star.
Yet we know that the pressure of life is hard
And the alliance of death is deep,
As we fall and rise on the "angled way"
That leads to the gate of Sleep.

We know that the problems of sin and pain
And the passions that lead to crime
Are the mysteries locked from age to age
In the awful vault of Time,
Yet we lift our weary foot and strive
Through the mire and mist to grope
And find a ledge on the mount of Faith
In the morning land of Hope.

RICHES IN TRIFLES.

Some Big Fortunes That Have Come From Little Inventions.

It has become almost an axiom with the majority that larger fortunes are to be raised from some simple invention than from difficult and expensive inventions that involve a great outlay of money to manufacture. This is to a certain extent true. A certain American patent for fastening kid gloves has yielded a fortune of several hundred thousand dollars for its fortunate owner, and the inventor of a collar clasp enjoys $30,000 royalty a year as the reward for his endeavor. A new kind of sleeve button has made $50,000 in five years for its patentee, and the simple twisting of safety pins in such a way that there is no possible danger of the point sticking in the child promises to enrich its owner beyond any of his early dreams of wealth. A man one day turned a piece of wire so as to hold a cork more securely in a bottle and forthwith somebody saw a brilliant idea and patented the modern wire stopper holder, which is now used annually on several million bottles. The accidental bending of a hairpin by a woman to prevent it from sliding out of her hair so easily produced a fortune for her husband, who immediately saw the possibilities of a crinkled hairpin for women.

Instances could be multiplied indefinitely of large fortunes being made from small inventions, but fortunately for those inventors who make a life study of intricate problems of mechanics and disdain to waste their talents upon trivial, popular articles of the day there is often also ample reward held in store for the products that take years to produce and which revolutionize existing methods of industry and mechanics.

Edison has reaped honors and riches of a princely character from his discoveries; McCormick has realized in his reaper the fortunes of a millionaire; the Corliss engine brought honors and decorations to its inventor and enabled him to amass a great fortune in a few years; Professor Bell found in his telephone not only the consummation of his early hopes and ambitions, but a substantial pecuniary reward; harvesting steel armor has become synonymous with the inventor's name, and it brings an annual income of huge proportions to its discoverer; Elias Howe, the inventor of the sewing machine, realized over $2,000,000 from his inventions, and Nikola Tesla, though still young and rich in promises, finds an abundance of money in his work.—George Ethelbert Walsh in Cassier's Magazine.

Saved by a Cat.

Sir Edward Osborne, lord mayor of London in his time, bought an ancient house in Yorkshire, and sent his children thither. There were two boys. The elder dutifully obeyed when summoned to his lessons one morning in a turret, but the younger, loitering, "happed to light upon a cat which he delighted to play with and crept after her to catch her under a table in the room, which was covered over with a carpet hanging down to the floor." Thus he disappeared, and next instant a terrible rush of wind overthrew the turret, in which his brother and the tutor sat at work, crushing them to death. Supposing that both her sons were there, the mother fell into convulsions, and we imagine the scene. One of the maids, running in a distracted manner from room to room, caught sight of the small boy peeping from under the table, with the cat in his arms, snatched him up and bore him in ecstasy to his mother, he only crying, "I pray thee, I pray thee, do not whip me!" So it may be said that the Duke of Leeds now owes his existence to a cat.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mystification.

His weakness was prevarication. His wife detested lying and constantly urged him to mend his ways. One morning she said: "Will, see if you can't be perfectly truthful today. Don't tell a lie. Now, promise!" He promised and went away to work. When he came home to dinner, she said:

"Dear, did you keep your promise?"

"I did," he replied soberly.

Then he caught her in his arms.

"Darling," he cried, "I will not lie to you. When I said I had kept my promise to you, I did not tell the truth; but, believe me, that was the only lie I told all day."

For 20 seconds she was lost in perplexity. Then she gave it up; the problem was too deep for her.—New York World.

Know It All.

"By the way, Tom," said Mr. Manning to his son, fresh from academic groves, "I have been thinking the matter over, and I have come to the conclusion that I had better go to school somewhere and that you had better take the business and run it. It cannot help improving under the eye of one so gifted as yourself."—Boston Transcript.

Small Tommy's Wish.

Small Tommy was very fond of candy, and asked, "Mamma, can God make anything he wants to?"

"Of course he can," was the reply.

"Well," exclaimed the little fellow, "I'd just like to see him make a stick o' candy with only one end to it."—Memphis Scimitar.

One Field Unavaded.

"I see that glass bricks are coming into general use," said the popular science boarder.

"They won't invade the gold brick field," said the cheerful idiot. "They are too easily seen through."—Indianapolis Journal.

Page's Watch.

CAMDEN NEWS.

A Summer Visitor Now With Friends On Santiago—Notes of Interest to All.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Camden, July 2. Alfred M. Judson, Jr., of New York, a son of Alfred M. Judson, Esq., a stock broker in New York, has recently distinguished himself at Guiquir by diving into the shark-infested water for guns, bagles etc. that had been cast from the landing boats. Young Judson is well known in Camden, where he has spent several summers at "Storyhurst" cottage. He is a crack shot, a skilful fencer, an expert swimmer and diver, and his many friends in town are pleased to hear of his courage. He was a member of Squadron A. of the New York Volunteer Cavalry, but was not chosen as one of the 562 to go South. He joined Roosevelt's Rough Riders M. and Mrs. A. M. Judson, Miss Josephine Judson and Miss Carrie Crawford arrived at "Storyhurst" Saturday morning.

On Sunday morning at the Congregational church Rev. L. D. Evans will preach a Fourth of July sermon when a collection will be taken for the benefit of the Maine soldiers, who are in hospitals. Collections will be taken in all the churches on next Sunday and every citizen should give liberally.

Rev. W. C. Gaucher visited town for a short visit last week. Mr. Gaucher was rector of the Baptist church here ten years ago. Since then he has been in St. Stephen, New Brunswick. He is now on his regular vacation trip which he will spend traveling in Europe.

The steamer Merryconeag, Capt. Archibald, has advertised for two excursions to Bangor, July 3, and Portland, July 4. The Bangor excursion will leave Camden at 7.45 and return, leaving Bangor at 4 P. M. Fare for the round trip fifty cents. Cars will leave Thomaston at 6 A. M. to connect with boat.

The Camden boys have organized a ball team. The first game will be played with the Thomastons Saturday at 2.30 P. M. at Knowlton grounds.

The son of Putnam Young met with an accident Thursday, playing with a toy cannon, which exploded. He received a bad cut in the forehead and will probably lose the sight of one eye.

The Bangor Whig and Courier will arrive in Camden at 12.30 and be delivered at the subscriber's residence or place of business. Mr. Fred Lewis will have charge of the papers, where they will be on sale.

Mr. V. V. Thompson, head master of the High school at Ashland, Maine, is spending his summer vacation in Knox county, his former home. He will teach at Ashland another year at an increased salary and in 1899 resume his studies at Harvard Medical School.

Hon. Sidney M. Bird of Rockland and his son Alan Bird, a student of the University of Maine, sailed on steamer Umbria of the Cunard line Saturday for Liverpool and will make a tour of several weeks in Great Britain and a visit to some of the capitals and leading points of interest in Continental Europe.

The U. S. fish commission schooner Grampus, Capt. E. E. Hall, has spent most of the summer on the Maine coast, getting seed lobsters and distributing the fry. Capt. Hall reports that he has collected 1700 seed lobsters this year, paying the fishermen 15 cents each. The fry are small, about the size of a small house fly of whitish color, but fully developed in the form of lobsters their claws very prominent. To keep them alive, the water is constantly changed by an ingenious device on board the Grampus. With little effort, the government might establish hatcheries at some point on the coast by which our waters might be well stocked not only with lobsters but codfish.

Col. Baker and Mrs. Baker are at J. F. Thomas' home.

Mrs. H. W. Page and Mrs. Edwin Jenks sailed for Europe June 18, and have arrived safely. Dr. Bartstein W. Page will sail the middle of July to join them.

Mrs. Loyd Chamberlain and son of Brookline, Mass., are in Camden for the summer. Senator Chamberlain will arrive in Camden soon.

Rev. Henry Jones, rector of St. Thomas (Episcopal) church, has been at Waterville this week, attending commencement exercises.

Mrs. S. E. Coombs, who has been spending the winter in California, arrived in town for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mero of Augusta are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Mero, Chestnut street. Their son, Eldon Mero, was one of the victims of the Maine. He was a master mechanic on the battleship.

Major Dunbar left Friday for Northfield, Mass., to attend the Y. M. C. A. convention. He is president of the Y. M. C. A. of Hebron.

One of the most effective songs at the patriotic concert last Tuesday evening was the "Red, White and Blue," sung by Miss Adeline Adams, daughter of Benjamin C. Adams of Camden. Miss Adams has a beautiful voice, of pure, sweet tones, and she is always received with enthusiasm.

Hon. Edward Freeman and family of Providence, R. I., have arrived at their summer home at Lake City.

Mr. E. L. Dillingham of New York is at "Arequippa." Mrs. Sally Oliver Dillingham and Miss Julia Dillingham of Bangor, are at "Arequippa" for the summer.

BUCKSPORT NEWS

Exodus of the Fair Sex From Town on Saturday.

Streets Being Kept in Good Condition—Bicycle Tax Used for Purpose—Death of Capt. Patten, of Orland—Life at Fort Knox.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Bucksport, July 2. Quite a party of young ladies from town will go to Verona Park this morning to remain over Sunday and the Fourth. They will return in time for the parade on the afternoon of the Fourth.

Selectman S. E. Hall is keeping the streets of the village in excellent condition. The roadway is kept free from stones and little and refuse is cleared each morning. The $90 bicycle tax collected this year for the first time has been appropriated by Mr. Hall for the above purpose.

Word has been received here of the death of Capt. Gavin E. Patten, of Orland. Capt. Patten was mate of the American ship F. B. Thomas, Capt. Blanchard. While the vessel was in Hong Kong Capt. Patten was taken with cramps in the stomach. He was removed to the hospital where he died April 28, after an illness of two days. Capt. Patten was 42 years old and has followed the sea for many years. For four years he was mate on the Daniel Barnes. Capt. Joseph Stover, of this place, is in Hong Kong. It is a strange coincidence that single Capt. Patten started on his last voyage the Daniel Barnes was lost near Hong Kong. The ship masters in Hong Kong started a subscription and defrayed the expense of burial, erected a monument, enclosed the spot with an iron railing, sent a good purse, through the American consul, to Mrs. Patten. Capt. Patten was buried in the European cemetery, Happy Valley. He leaves a wife, three children and a mother. The youngest child, now 7 months old, was born since he sailed. He was a member of Bucksport Lodge, No. 141, A. O. U. W. It is likely that funeral services will be held in Orland.

Mrs. Geo. London and son visited Mrs. A. S. Harrington at the seminary Friday.

Mrs. Josiah Partridge left today to spend a few days with friends in Bangor.

The room of the Bucksport fire department have been painted and thoroughly repaired. Selectman Hall believes in having all departments of the town government kept in "apple pie" order.

Mrs. Hattie Simmons and daughter arrived Friday to spend the summer with Mrs. John Atwood on Franklin street.

Misses Lena Closey and Gertrude Closey left Friday for Northeast Harbor, where they will do table work for the summer.

Miss Elizabeth Snowman and Miss Elizabeth Emery left Saturday for Lynn, Mass.

Thomas E. Shea, the actor, will arrive here about the middle of the month to locate, has a summer cottage on the Shore road.

Mr. Charles Shute, who left for Boston Saturday to spend the Fourth, will return next week and spend the month of July in town.

Our Fourth of July celebration opened Friday evening with a grand display of fireworks under the supervision of Mr. Frank Pierce. For several years Mr. Pierce has been in the habit of celebrating by an display of fireworks. As the City of Bangor will spend the Fourth in Boston it was necessary to take time by the "forelock." Everyone who witnessed the display of fireworks Friday evening will pronounce it a success.

All the good boys in town will undoubtedly be on hand Monday morning to attend Expression of Leslie C. Homer's annual distribution of firecrackers. Once a year all debts are to be reckoned with the good boys called for by Mr. Homer's files. The regimental band, under Band Master Kenney, is preparing for a first class concert for Monday evening.

The life at Fort Knox is very pleasant these summer days. Everyone is busy and the most of the men are interested in the work. The signal corps is fast becoming proficient in sign talking. The practice with heavy guns is kept up every day. Some of the smaller guns have been brought out of the fort and placed in position on the earthworks. The recruits are fast acquiring the manner of veterans and the most of the men are anxious to see field service and are doing their utmost to be prepared when the call comes.

Miss Nancy Nichols arrived home from Elm Hampton, Conn., today, accompanied by Miss Bertha Sears of Portland, Conn.

Mr. Lester Gilman is at present clerking at Grindall's ice cream parlors.

HORRIBLE SPANISH TORTURE TO CUBAN OFFICERS.

Washington, July 2. Capt. Nicholas Peter Stable, aide-de-camp of the secretary of war in Cuba, Col. Forsterling has arrived at Washington and has been in conference with Major Gen. Miles and the officers of his staff. Capt. Stable comes directly from the seat of the Cuban government, now at La Esperanza, where President Masso and his cabinet are located. He brings much information as to the situation throughout the island and his visit is toward securing further co-operation between the entire Cuban forces and the United States troops.

Capt. Stable says President Masso and his cabinet are strongly located at El Esperanza, in the province of Puerto Principe. They have temporary quarters and have fortified themselves successfully against the frequent attacks by Spanish troops. Capt. Stable reports for the first time the details of a hot engagement, continuing through June 3, 4 and 5. The Spaniards numbered 4000, while the Cuban defense was maintained by only 800. Notwithstanding the discrepancy, the Cuban loss was only 47 killed and wounded, while the Spanish left thirty killed on the field, indicating that their entire loss of killed and wounded was much greater. The Spaniards captured two Cuban officers, a first and second lieutenant. Capt. Stable says the officers were subjected to the most inhuman indignities. One of them was placed by the Spanish commander in front of a cannon and at a given signal was blown to atoms. The Spanish commander then called for a volunteer to "de gollado" the remaining officer. This consists of thrusting a bayonet through the neck of the prisoner from one side to the other, penetrating the windpipe. A Spanish volunteer stepped forward and the Cuban officer was thus subjected to the torture of a slow death following the infliction of the "de gollado."

Except for these brutal atrocities the Spanish raid on El Esperanza was futile and the Spanish force finally retreated. Capt. Stable was recommended in his visit to the war department by Senor Quesada, secretary of the Cuban legation. It is probable that these conferences will result in a fuller co-operation when the American army begins to make its way westward to the central part of the island.

A BRITISH PAPER SNARLS.

The unanimity with which the British newspapers have been praising the United States lately, those like the Saturday Review, which in the beginning was so hostile, having either changed their tone or been silent, is again disturbed by the snarling editorial of the Morning Post, which, in addition, prints a letter protesting against Great Britain's "help to America," declaring that it should be known that at the critical turning point of the struggle between Spain and the United States, it is Great Britain which is influencing and determining the issue. John Hay, the United States ambassador, had a long interview with the premier, the Marquis of Salisbury, Mr. John D. Long, the American secretary of the navy, boasted that Admiral Camara's fleet would not be allowed to pass through the Suez canal.

"If," the letter continues, the position of the American forces in the Pacific is considered of importance, this decision will at once become manifest. Four armored cruisers lie in Manila bay after two months of inactivity in tropical waters and short of ammunition and coal. In the meanwhile three small military expeditions which left San Francisco are struggling across. An active commander with a force such as Admiral Camara has would, of course, have the whole American position in the Pacific at its mercy. The American government was aware of this, and when it found that threats of an immediate attack on the Spanish coast was unsuccessful, it appealed to the British government to stop Admiral Camara's fleet."

The special correspondent of the Times in Berlin says that the angry protests of the Cologne Gazette and the Lokalanzeiger against "Americans returning to dictate to Admiral Von Diedrichs (the German naval commander at Manila) as to how he should act, were called out by the statement made by the Evening Post of New York, that an agreement in regard to Admiral Von Diedrichs's attitude had been reached at a conference between Secretary Day and Ambassador Von Holleben, the German ambassador at Washington.

WERE SPANIARDS CALLED BACK?

(Copyright 1898 by Associated Press.)

Montijo Bay, Island of Jamaica, Friday, July 1 (10.30 P. M.)—Delayed in transmission) A Cuban messenger from the insurgents near Manzanillo, province of Santiago de Cuba, who landed near here today from a sail boat, brought the intelligence that the Spanish troops, numbering about 8,000 men, which left Manzanillo on June 23 to march to Santiago de Cuba, were called back by Gen. Pando. It appears that when this army reached the vicinity of Bakamo, Gen. Pando was not with his troops, as had been reported. He was said to be at Havana.

The relieving army, the Cuban says, was ill supplied with food and the roads were almost impassable, so the artillery could not be dragged along. Thus, getting to Santiago in time to succor the garrison there appeared to be impossible, hence the recall of the troops.

OUR RELATIONS WITH CANADA.

An indication of the feeling of cordiality existing between the United States and Canada has been furnished by the application of a battalion of Canadian troops to enter the United States with arms to assist in the celebration of the Fourth of July. The application came from the Forty-third battalion of the troops stationed at Ottawa, consisting of the Royal Scots and the Carleton Rifles. Their desire was to go from Ottawa to Portland, Me., to participate in the celebration.

When the application was submitted to President McKinley he granted it promptly.

Ornithologists tell us that when feeding the stretch of the ostrich is from 20 to 22 inches when walking, but not feeding, 20 inches, and when terrified, 11½ feet to 14 feet, or at the rate of about 25 miles an hour.

In India elephants over 12 and up to 45 years of age are deemed in best condition for purchase, and will generally work well until they are 80 years old.

NEW YORK LANDLORDS.

Let Their Houses Remain Vacant While Demanding High Rentals.

A newcomer who has been looking for a home not large enough to accommodate one of town furniture remarked today: "What's the matter with rents in this town anyway? I see thousands of flats and offices tenantless, but as most of them are beyond my means I'm curious to know why the landlords don't come down a peg or two and give a poor fellow a chance to locate within reasonable reach of his "restless." And so are others. A friend of mine up in Harlem is one of three occupants of a flat house built for ten. The seven apartments have been empty a year, but the agent refuses to lower the rent when any one of the three threatens to change his address, nor will he scale down the monthly figure in order to fill the vacant and profitless rooms. And this isn't a solitary case of this sort, by any means. Another real estate agent has been holding a row of fine flats for nearly three years because nobody feels like squandering $1,000 on any one of them. If he had knocked off $600, he could have rented every one of them. Just why the metropolitan landlord prefers loss to gain is one of the secrets of the real estate business that outsiders can only juggle with mentally.

Another peculiar feature of the business is the way in which the tenants who can put up a good bluff manage to enjoy all the comforts of an up to date home without paying scarcely anything for the privilege. I know one man here who doesn't pay over $200 a year for a $600 flat. He got behind in his rent, and then he jollied the janitor, who did the collecting. The janitor, in turn, smoothed down the landlord, and as a result the tenant got in deeper and deeper. Now he pays a month's rent once in a while and puts up such a bold front that he gets a receipt on his premises. In the same house is another tenant who pays $65 a month, but he shuts up his apartments for two months every summer and goes seaward. He flatly refuses to pay rent while doing the grand, and the landlord hasn't as yet done a thing to him. Still another high flier puts up $75 a month for the pick of the premises. He's in about four months now, but as yet care hasn't carved any wrinkles on his broad brow. All of which leads to the conclusion that rents are high here in order to cover losses of the sort cited.—New York Letter in Pittsburg Dispatch.

SARCASM BY WHISTLER.

Word Sketch Which Scored a Member of the Hogarth Club.

There is in London an institution called the Hogarth club, the membership of which is restricted to artists and literateurs. It is something on the lines of the old Bohemian club, and both business men and American millionaires are strictly interdicted. Whistler is a member; and, of course, shines by his witticisms. The lines being strictly drawn there is always an effort being made by some outsider to force an entrance, and in the case of Baron Grant it met with success. Grant was a trade millionaire who had made his fortune in Turkish contracts and had invested in an Italian title on his way back to London. He was a particularly notorious person and quite the last man whom the Hogarths should have admitted. However, by dint of buying pictures he got in and proceeded to make his friends happy.

One night a big dinner was organized in his honor and Whistler invited. Though the great artist had refused, he happened into the club on the important evening and a deputation of his friends finally persuaded him into the supper room. He appeared, was wildly cheered and was at once asked to make a speech.

"Gentlemen," he said, "it is on the subject of titles I should like to speak. There are several kinds of titles. Some men are born into them—those are inherited titles; others are conferred by the sovereign and have been earned by distinguished service; a few are attributes of the government, of the law or of the church. All this you know, most of you. But a title which is not inherited, nor yet bestowed for merit, nor even the sign of a position, is but a barren grant."—San Francisco Wave.

"Well, Jamie, how are you feeling today?" said the minister to one of his parishioners, an old man suffering from chronic rheumatism. "You are not looking as brisk as usual."

"Na, sir," replied the old fellow sadly, "I've been poor wi' unfortunit the day."

"How, Jamie?"

"Weel, sir, I got a letter fra a Glasgo lawyer body this morning, tellin me tha man cousin Jock was dead, an that he had left me twa hunner poun'."

"Two hundred pounds!" repeated the minister. "And you call that hard luck! Why, it is quite a fortune for you, Jamie."

"Ay," said the old man sorrowfully, "but the stipid lawyer body dinna put enough stamps on his letter, an I had a hale saxpence to pay for extra postage."—Lewiston Journal.

From His Point of View.

"But you confess, father," protested the beautiful girl, when the father showed indications of a desire to withhold his consent, "that you do not know of a single solitary thing that is in the least derogatory to his reputation."

"That's just it," replied the old gentleman. "I don't like the idea of bringing any one into my family who is so infernally sly as all that."—Chicago Post.

Bellsworth, July 2. Webster H. Fenley, of Boston, gave an instructive smoker talk on photography at the Camera Club last evening, which the members of the club appreciated highly.

Wellington Faulkin's horse ran away Saturday morning, dashing over School street at a rapid rate and giving Miss Haslam and a woman friend a bad scare from the fast ride. The horse cut a leg badly and a hemorrhage also resulted from this trial of speed. Dr. G. T. Caldwell gave the horse proper treatment.

Miss Clio M. Chilcott has returned from Waterville, where she has been in a tendance on the Colby commencement exercises.

Miss Ethel B. Jellison has entered the office of A. W. Cushman & Son, to act as bookkeeper for the firm. Miss Lillie E. Davis is studying stenography in the Postal office in this city. Both the young ladies are members of the High school class of '98.

A party of ten young people have engaged Hoskins's cottage for a week's outing at Shady Nook, and have already migrated from the heated town. Mrs. S. K. Whitney, 2d, will be the chaperon.

Horace Newenham, of Cherryfield, who has been a distinguished member of the Colby base ball team this season, is visiting Ernest L. Moore, in this city. Mr. Newenham is a member of the Senator Hale hose running team.

Fred Flynn, of Bangor, is in town, after an absence of a month or two, during which time he has been employed in Gardiner. He will run with the Dirigo hose company in Bangor on July 4.

A chimney burned out at R. D. Holmes' residence on the Berry road on Saturday and about 3 o'clock in the afternoon the roof of the main part of the house caught from some big sparks and the shingles began to blaze. An alarm was rung in and the hose teams had a lively race for the scene. But a few pails of water extinguished the flames without the aid of the department.

The appointment of Henry Whiting as collector of customs of the port of Frenchman's bay, to succeed John B. Redman of this city, is entirely a satisfactory one. Mr. Whiting has been in business for 25 years in the store formerly occupied by his father, the late Henry Whiting, in B'ah, and now occupied by the firm of Whiting Bros. He has served as alderman from Ward 1, and is known as an honest and able man. He is a college graduate.

ACTIVITY OF CUBAN SPIES.

"There is one branch of the insurgent army," said a Cuban who is visiting in New York city, "of whose accomplishments the Cuban nation has every reason to feel proud. I refer to the spy system, which is so thoroughly established throughout the island that it is impossible for the Spanish to make a move, or even utter importance without the fact becoming known immediately to the insurgent bands near the scene of the proposed operation.

"Gen. Garcia is kept constantly informed of the movements within the palace of the Captain-General in Havana and he is frequently aware of the proposed movements of Spanish troops before anyone but the highest and most trusted officers of Gen. Blanco's staff have been informed of his intentions.

"It is also surprising that considering the boldness with which Cuban spies proceed with their investigations so few of them are caught. When I was with the Cuban army, about a year and a half ago, which of our most valuable information came from an officer in the volunteer army, who, though of Spanish family, was an ardent sympathizer with the Cuban cause. This officer with the title of the palace in Havana and he was so skillful in transmitting his reports to the Cuban headquarters that he retained his place for six or eight months. He would have been there now but for the cowardice of a brother Cuban, who betrayed the volunteer to save his own life. As it was the informer whom we will call Miguel, although that is not his name, received warning in time and escaped to our army, where he now holds an important position.

"Miguel at first sent his information to us by means of a trusted servant who took the despatches at night to a point outside the city limits, where his messages were concealed in a box underneath a flat rock until a member of our army could get them. The Spaniards became aware after a time that important information was being furnished to the insurgents by some one in authority in the Spanish ranks, and began an investigation. Miguel was suspected among others as to whether it could possibly be any one connected with the volunteer army.

"One of the Spanish sentries on the city wall reported that they had on several occasions seen what they thought at the time might possibly have been a thin creeping through a hole in the wall a few hundred feet beyond his regular beat. Instructions were issued to the guards to keep a vigilant watch on the spot and arrest the first suspicious person seen in the vicinity of the outpost after dark. The very next morning after the promulgation of the order a lieutenant with a score of soldiers, appeared in the office of the commandant, bringing, secretly bound, an unfortunate American newspaper correspondent, who, unaware of the new edict calling on the guards for extra vigilance, had taken this means of eluding the sentries.

"The reporter's release was obtained soon afterward, as he was able to prove to the satisfaction of the Spaniards that his mission had nothing whatever to do with either the Spanish or Cuban cause but was eminently peaceful. The fact that the suspicions of the Spaniards had been aroused, however, caused Miguel to look about for safer means of communicating with our forces. He finally enlisted the services of a butcher of a produce merchant who had a stall in the market at Havana.

"The old merchant was a pacifico and it was therefore, not at all difficult for a young Cuban, also supposed to be a pacifico, to gain access to his house in the country. To make love to the old man's daughter was a harder task but it was finally accomplished and she agreed to receive letters for him from a friend in Havana, which were to be sent to her the convenience sake through her brother, who drove the supply wagon which made frequent trips between the merchant's place of business and his house in the country.

"Miguel bought his supplies of the same merchant and the scheme worked successfully for a long time or up to the time the volunteer was forced to fly from Havana.

"Gen. Blanco's bodyguard was informed by some pipe of the means that Miguel had taken to send his information and the boy who drove the mule team was intercepted on his way from the city by Spanish soldiers. By a fortunate chance Miguel had not sent any word to the Cubans that day but under the fear of punishment threatened by the Spaniards the boy confessed that he had been in the habit of receiving letters from some one in Havana. The boy himself did not know from whom they came, as Miguel sent them by the same trusted servant whom he had employed on former occasions, and he represented himself to be merely a poor pacifico, who took the means of communicating with his friend in the country.

"Miguel learned that the boy had been intercepted and knowing that all would be discovered as soon as the Spaniards made an investigation, minutes, his horse and, after taking all the equipment he could pack on his horse rode out into the brush and joined our forces."

PROFANITY TABOOED.

The regulations of both the army and navy forbid profanity and any soldier or sailor who objects to being sworn at by his superior officer may make complaint, the only subjecting the offending officer to trial by court martial. Yet we have reason to believe that such men as Washington, Greenwood, and Grant could swear and did swear upon occasion, and history furnishes no record of their having been court martialed on that account.

Sir Charles Steward Scott, who is to succeed Sir Nicholas O'Conor as British Ambassador to St. Petersburg, has had the widest experience of any man in the diplomatic service, having served in Paris, Dresden, Copenhagen, Madrid, Mexico, Lisbon, Munich, Vienna and St. Petersburg.

Prior to the Duke of Connaught giving up the command of Aldershot his Majesty will review the troops at that station. It is some time since the Queen reviewed the troops at Aldershot and her intention of doing so is regarded on all sides with appreciation by officers and men mustered in this district.

John Boyd Thatcher of Albany, well known as a collector of American historical matters, has somewhat recently exchanged belts of the Onondaga, Seneca and other York State Indians, and values to give them up, though it would cost him without the knowledge of the chiefs. One of the belts is of the time of Hiawatha, the famous Iroquois chief.

Lord Wolseley was recently presented the freedom of the City of York and the casket containing the warrant was decorated with a picture of York Minster, the city arms and crest of York, and other heraldic bearings of Lord Wolseley.

HAS A GOOD NAME.

In rabecca McFarlin's 27, 1898. "The well-known medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, has built a good name in this state. It is accomplishing many remarkable cures, and giving vigor and vitality to weak and tired people. Aldes. Susan Ingalls of this place says she has suffered much benefit from its use in cases of apepsia, rheumatism and heart trouble and has found it excellent as a blood purifier and tonic."

Scrofula, blip disease, salt rheum, dyspepsia and other illnesses due to impure blood are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

EASTPORT NEWS.

The Sardine Syndicate—New Electric Plant—A Big Fill.

(Special to Whig and Courier.)

Eastport, July 1.—Their joy is tempered with rumors regarding the number of options on factories that have been accepted by the syndicate people. The options expired at twelve o'clock last night but at this meeting nothing has been given out, as the lawyers are still busy making their final examinations. It is matched by some who may have some way of obtaining inside information that two of the largest packers will not be included in the list. In this case, they the opposition, in the trust, will be strengthened by several hundred thousand dollars of capital. Within a few days the result will be known and the American Sardine Co. will probably have control of about seventy per cent of the factories.

Work is well advanced on the Donbyville Lumber Co.'s wharf, which, when completed will be one of the best docks on the city front.

The Methodist society held an ice cream social at their church on High street, last evening and realized a neat sum.

A. H. Cole, manager of the Burnham & Morrill lobster factory, is in town today on his way to Portland, the season's business being over. The output at his shop has been light compared with the last season's.

Miss Lona Smith, principal of the North End school, leaves today for a few weeks' visit in Boston.

The Viking carried a large excursion to the racoast at St. Stephen today.

The delegates to the District and State convention returned today well satisfied.

The school board held a meeting behind closed doors last evening and it has looked out today that they re-elected all the present teachers in the employ of the city save two of the principals.

Capt. Geo. H. Coates of this city, late in command of the Pentagoet, for several seasons plying between this city and New York has gone to the latter city, is mounted there, it is said, by the company who will, about the 20th of this month open a new line, touching here and perhaps at St. John.

George Hume, of this city, who recently graduated at the Institute of Technology of Boston, will shortly go to Lubec to do some surveying for the Klondike people and later install a large electric plant for them.

The steamer State of Maine brought a quantity of 20-inch iron pipe for the W. C. R. R. The pipe was in ten pieces 12 feet long, each weighing two tons, and were taken from the steamer and hauled to the fill near the Redoubts by C. B. Dow. The pipe will be used for drainage purposes in the fill, which is forty feet deep and 120 feet wide, said to be the deepest on the line, and will require 15,000 cubic yards of earth to fill it.

Miss May Clark returned to Boston by today's steamer.

An accident happened at the corner of Washington and High streets this noon, whereby a young man named Newcomb driving F. C. Ramsdell's ice cart received severe bruises. In turning a corner too near the gutter the cart went into the ditch and threw the mind off in such a way that the hind wheel passed over his shoulders and he also received a severe cut in the head. He was picked up insensible and will be confined to the house for some days.

A horse, driven by two men was standing near the roller on the railroad line last evening when the engine was started and the puffing frightened the animal, which started to run, overthrowing the carriage and breaking it in several places. Nobody was hurt.

Beginning Monday H. N. Boyd & Co. will run a team on the route about the city, delivering ice cream and fruit of all kinds to their customers and all others who choose to patronize them.

Jerry Sullivan, the popular old gentleman, has his large sloop in trim for the summer business, and every fine day sees him off in the bay with a party. Everybody knows Uncle Jerry and he is always in demand with the people who summer here.

OUT 90 AND WALKS 917 MILES.

People who were on Crockett street yesterday may have noticed an aged man wending his way toward the post-office, a short stick being his support.

He was an odd-looking character. White hair denoted extreme age, and his step was somewhat unsteady but his figure was upright with indications of vigor and though crown, there was a rugged look on his face and his eyes were lustrous.

Across the traveler's shoulders were strapped two large canvas packages which hung in front a large water cooler hung by straps to his back.

His name is Buckingham, a shoemaker by trade, and he is now nearly 91 years old. He came from El Paso to Beaumont and walked every foot of the way, carrying water and provisions while traveling through the deserted country along the Mexican border.

From Mr. Buckingham no details of his journey could be obtained, except that he left El Paso on Feb. 10 of this year and made the trip in easy stages arriving at 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

The distance from Beaumont to El Paso is 917 miles. Buckingham was 112 days in walking the distance and covered an average of eight and one-fifth miles per day of 24 hours, which is pretty fair walking for a man of less than 90 years of age.

Buckingham may not be aware of the fact but in walking from El Paso to Beaumont he has established a pedestrian record for the 90-year-old class that has not heretofore been equaled and probably will never be excelled.—(Beaumont, Tex., Journal.

A DISAPPEARING ENGLISH RIVER.

Much interest is taken in the St. Mary Cray and Darenth districts in a discussion of the causes which have led to the gradual drying up during the last ten years of the river Cray. This was once a clear running stream, but the springs which supplied it have been failing lower and lower, and in some places the course of the river is already dry. Committees have been appointed by the Bromley and St. Mary Cray local councils to inquire into the matter, and it is being urged that an official inquiry ought to be held to discover the cause or causes of what has already become a great inconvenience, and may, it is feared, result in a great nuisance and grave danger to the public health.—London Times.

Napoleon, at St. Helena, said to Antommarchi, his physician, "Believe me, we had better leave off all these remedies. Life is a fortress which neither you nor I know anything about. Why throw obstacles in the way of its defence? Its own means are superior to all the apparatus of your laboratories." Medicine is a collection of uncertain prescriptions, the results of which, taken collectively, have been harmful to mankind. Water, air and cleanliness are my chief medicines."

At the time when Napoleon said this he was largely right. Physicians in those days dealt out obnoxious and drastic drugs that did violence to every fiber in the body. Since that date medical science has made wonderful strides. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine composed of the medicinal roots that do no violence to the nature. Its action is gentle and natural. It simply promotes the natural processes of nutrition and excretion. It restores the lost appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, makes the assimilation of the food perfect, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, builds new and healthy flesh and tissue, tones the nerves and gives sweet and refreshing sleep. It is the great blood-maker and tissue-builder. It cures 98 per cent of all cases of all diseases of the air passages that end up in consumption. It is a wonderful medicine for all diseases due to insufficient or improper nourishment of body or nerves. Do not deal with unscrupulous dealers who urge you to take worthless substitutes for the sake of a few pennies added profit.

"I have been using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets for the past three years and they have saved my life," says Mrs. Sophia Fraser, of Oakdale, Cockburn Co., Ont. "I never keep the Pellets long in the house all the time and use them every now and then as I feel the need of a laxative. I am fifty years of age and was troubled with liver complaint until I used your medicine. Now I am well."

Every sick man or woman should send one cent stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., to pay the cost of mailing only for a free copy of Dr. Pierce's great 1000 page Common Sense Medical Adviser. In paper covers send 21 one-cent stamps.

PRIVATE MAILING CARDS.

Rules to Govern Their Use Made Public by Postmaster Van Cott.

Postmaster Van Cott has announced the rules to which the public must conform in order to be entitled to the privilege given by a recent act of Congress, which authorizes the transmission in the domestic mails of private cards bearing written messages at the postage charge of 1 cent each. The law goes into effect July 1.

Cards must not exceed the size of the U. S. postal card, which is 3½ by 5½ inches in dimensions. Their quality must be substantially that of the government postal card, and weigh about six pounds three ounces to the thousand. Their color may be white, cream, light gray, or light buff.

The cards must bear on the addressed side in print, the words "Private mailing card—authorized by act of Congress of May 19, 1898." When prepared for sale they should also bear in the upper right hand corner of the address side a diagram with the words "Place a 1-cent stamp here" and in the lower right hand corner the printed words, "This side is exclusively for the address."

The message on the cards may be in writing or print, and there may also appear on the message side advertisements, illustrations, or other matter, printed either in black or colors, and there must be attached to every card bearing a 1-cent adhesive postage stamp.

These cards cannot be mailed to foreign countries except at the letter rate of postage.—New York Tribune.

ISLAND FALLS.

Our correspondent writes: Rev. H. H. Noyes is soon to remove to New Gloucester.

Miss Ethel McCormick will go to Bangor Monday for nine months' work.

Rev. H. H. Noyes, Geo. H. Denham and Geo. W. Kelley are the delegates to the Republican county convention to be held in Houlton the 8th inst. A Republican class convention will be held in Island Falls on Wednesday, July 6, to nominate a candidate for representative to legislature.

Revered Masons and G. A. R. men went to Sherman Mills the 2d inst. to attend the funeral of Geo. W. Webber, Esq., who was a member of W. F. Hancock Post of this town.

Mr. Absalom Dow was in town Wednesday and Thursday on his way from Winfield to Fort Kent, where he will spend the summer with his son. Mr. Dow lived for many years in New Limerick, going to that place with his father's family, sixty-eight years ago. In this family there were seventeen children, ten boys and seven girls, and two only of his father's family have been left to make up thirty boys in the three houses near each other. When he was about twenty-one years of age he came down the Mattawamkeag river to this place on a drive consisting of large nine logs. At that time there was not a house in Island and all else where there is now a population of one thousand or more. Mr. Dow is now seventy-nine years old and near enough to see the end of his journey. He has all the friends and relatives of an youth are need.

NEWS OF NEIGHBORING TOWNS.

Before the season is over it is thought that the world's mile bicycle record will take another tumble. This year it was cut down from 1.39 1-5, by W. W. Hamilton, to 1.38 2-5 by Ed. McDuffee, J. W. Stocks of London, then shaved again, bringing the figures down to 1.37 2-5, and following up that performance with a mile in 1.33 2-5, time which was subsequently paralleled in this country by McDuffee. When the foot-racing season opened in England J. Platt-Betts cut the joint Stocks-McDuffee record to 1.35, which stands today as the world's time. Betts sailed Australia, where he made a successful war on the records of that country. The time, 1.35, made in London, is believed to be correct. Platt-Betts also reduced the intermediate records as follows: Quarter to 0.23; half mile to 0.46 3-5, and three-quarter mile to 1.10 3-5. The above fractional parts of a mile records are English times only, American riders having surpassed some of them.

William Morgan's experiment at Ambrose Park this year cost him $10,000. Talking of the cycle racing situation he said: "The outcome as shown to date was the results of events over which I had no control. I am not alone in experiencing bad business, and just now I know of one engaged in promoting sporting enterprise who is not feeling the effects of the unsatisfactory conditions. Even boxing, the greatest money maker in the list of professional sports, is away behind what its promoters hoped for. I have several plans for Ambrose Park and expect soon to have them in working order."

Elmer Kleinberg, of the Empire State Wheelmen, has succeeded in riding 300 miles in 20 hours on the Coney Island cycle path without being arrested. He started at 10 o'clock Monday morning and finished a few minutes before 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. He did not try to break the 200-mile record, which is 20 hours, 53 minutes, 8 seconds, but solely made because he had bet his bicycle against a second hand watch that he could accomplish the feat.

At cycle club entertainments in England they have a feature that is called a "bending contest," in which riders show their expertness by riding in and out around a row of nine pins. The distance between the pins is lessened as the competition progresses and the one who succeeds in riding between them when they stand closest together is declared the victor. The work requires clever "Dutch roll" riding and such an exhibition should be attractive wherever introduced.

Nothing has put so much of a premium on thorough acquaintance with bicycles as the auction rooms, the "special sales" and the "bargains" of the jobbing stores. One of the chief sources of profit for certain dealers is in "stripping" high grade tires, saddles, pedals and other accessories and replacing them with cheaper products, while holding the others for sale at cut prices. This is an evil that it is impossible to correct and no one who is ignorant of bicycle accessories can protect himself against it. When it is known that here is $5 or $6 difference between the cost of the best tires and inferior ones it can be readily appreciated how much "stripping" enables unscrupulous dealers to cut prices and yet make a respectable profit at both ends of the deal.

An accident that furnished a new argument in favor of the woman saying a fear sent on the tandem occurred on the boulevard in New York. A triplet ridden by three fellow clubmen was rolling smoothly along on a lively clip when the front forks broke. The second man on the front seat pitched forward and was so severely hurt that he has been abed ever since. The man on the second seat received a few scratches, while the third rider escaped without injury of any kind. The front position is undoubtedly the one of greatest danger in case of accident and herein lies the strongest point of those who argue in favor of the woman riding behind and talking at the back of her companion, as much as she can while keeping her spirits free from the clutch of the rear wheel.

At an uptown store in New York a few days ago a woman called to have her tires filled with fresh air. While the attendant was working the pump on one tire it suddenly exploded with a report like a pistol shot. The man very politely told the customer that the tire was defective and that he was sorry, but she would have to get a new one to replace it. The woman was enraged. She called the proprietor and demanded that he should furnish a new tire free of charge. When he refused she threatened to sue him. She finally left the place promising to take equal action. "Do you never make good for tires that burst while your men are pumping them up?" asked a reporter who happened to witness the episode. The letter replied: "Why, bless your heart, how many tires do you suppose I could give away in a week if I did so? The cheap tires that are being largely used now are often so poor that they explode. If it happens to be a new tire that goes the customer who is paying 5 cents to have it pumped up always becomes furious. We have to get used to that, you know. The riders do not understand, but there is probably not a pump in the two cities that is capable of bursting any sound tire. Even with the big stationary pump that we use here, which pumps twenty-two cubic inches of air a minute, you or I could not break a perfectly sound tire. Whom they explode it is because they are defective. It is hard to make the uninformed riders understand this but it is so. No dealer could afford to pump up tires for five cents apiece and pay for all the poor tires that happen to give way during the process. Just think what a bonus game might be played with us if we did such a thing. If any one had a tire that was known to be meaty to be old and weak all he would have to do would be to go into any store, ask to have it pumped up hard and, when it burst, demand a new tire. Oh, no! Business is plenty poor enough as it is, thank you, without paying full prices for any broken-winded tires."

SANGERVILLE NEWS.

A Bold Case of Breaking and Entering.

Arrest of the Party Charged with the Crime—Golden Wedding Celebrated—Notes.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Sangerville, July 2. One of the boldest acts of breaking and entering was committed Friday night about half past ten in this place at the store of Saunders Bros. & Co., where some party forced an entrance at a window on the west side of the store by prying it up, their intention being robbery, no doubt. While the party being the safer and picking up a big haul, he was discovered by some of the citizens, who gave the alarm and had the desperado made a leap out of the window and took flight down the drug store and up over the hill towards Guilford, closely followed by his discoverers. While running with his pursuers close at his heels he fell in a place where his foot was made known by the two electric lights on top for the 3d. There is no question about the part as it was only a short time ago that he was discovered in the same place. This time the case will be a grounds, updated with the evidence against him, and if nothing has its course he will be doing a term in another part of the State. Sheriff Martin of Guilford arrested one Elmore Troy Saturday afternoon on the charge of breaking and entering the store and he was taken to Dover on the 5.00 train for a hearing before Judge Durgin in the Dover municipal court.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Atwater celebrated their golden wedding last Thursday afternoon and evening. A number of guests were present besides the family, and they were the recipients of many useful presents. Light refreshments were served during the evening, after which a short reception was held and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Charles Morley of Lynn, Mass., has been visiting at Mrs. W. G. Dexter's for a few days.

Miss Mabel Richards has closed her millinery parlors at Greenville and returned home.

An exciting ball game was played this afternoon at Guilford between the Guilfords and Milos, resulting in a victory of 14 to 6 in favor of the Guilfords. A return game will be played at Milo the Fourth by the same teams.

MACHIAS NEWS.

Improvements at a Hotel—Arrangements for the Fourth—Notes.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Machias, July 2. Mrs. Fred Beverly of Lubec is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Leighton. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. John Beverly, is keeping house for her in her absence.

Dr. E. E. Jordan is making a visit in Bangor for a few days.

Capt. James Smith left on yesterday's boat for Boston, where he will take charge of his vessel that is now in waiting for him.

The plazza and new clapboards that have been added to the Eastern Hotel seem to put the finishing touch on the building more than anything else, and when completed will be a modern hotel in every respect.

The Harry LaMarr company gave a street parade and a short band concert which seemed to enliven things somewhat. They play at the Phenix Opera House this evening.

A blackboard notice on the postoffice corner announces that on 4th of July evening the Juvenile Invincibles will give an exhibition of fireworks on Tarbe & Longfellow's corner.

Miss Maud Hoar and Mrs. Thos. Albee spent a very pleasant day at East Kennebec, visiting Mrs. Chas. Shupp.

Miss Edith Foss has just closed a very successful term of school at Jonesboro and to show their appreciation the people have engaged her to teach the fall term.

We are glad to note the surprise exhibited at the great proportion of poultry in the State of Maine, and also the fortune obtained from our feathered friends. The poultry industry is on the increase each year. Those who only have kept a dozen or two now keep 50 to 100, and raise twice as many chickens. A great deal of this increase is due to the poultry press, and each year this reading matter is being sifted and will prove a blessing rather than otherwise. Patience and work are what is needed to make poultry culture a success.

The Floral Tea given at the Congregational church vestry Thursday evening, was a success in every respect, with about 100 present. Supper was served at 6.15, consisting of cold meats, strawberries and cream, cake and coffee and all for 25 cents. After supper was served, an entertainment was given that was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. W. H. Phinney is passing a two weeks' vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Phinney, here.

DEXTER NEWS.

Hearing on Search and Seizure Cases on Saturday—News Notes of Interest.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Dexter, July 2. The hearing in the search and seizure case where the officer seized fifteen bottles of beer and was prevented from seizing two pint bottles of whiskey by their spilling same and smashing the bottles, came in for a hearing in the municipal court Saturday morning and occupied all the forenoon. Andrew J. Caswell, proprietor of the Penobscot House, and wife, Effie Caswell, were arrested and arraigned and tried. The search was made in the Penobscot House and the liquors were found and seized. Mrs. Shaw, who formerly owned the hotel, and who testified that she had conveyed it to Mrs. Caswell, her daughter, and taken back a mortgage for the purchase price, claimed the liquors were hers, that she bought them herself and had used them for medicinal purposes. The decision holds Mrs. Caswell, fining her $100, and discharged Mr. Caswell.

Miss Evelyn Small, who has been teacher of the kindergarten for several months, has returned to her home in Livermore for the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Hawkes of Oldtown are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. Fitzgerald.

Miss Edith Waterman of Boston is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Waterman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fernald of Exeter were in town Saturday.

Mrs. C. E. Sawyer of Bangor was in town Saturday.

A monument to the artist Hans Makart was unveiled on June 18 in the City Park of Vienna. It is the work of the sculptor Tilgner, recently dead. The oration was made by Nikolaus Dumba.

Colonel J. W. Lake of Cincinnati, who has been in Washington making arrangements for the acceptance of his colored volunteers, is a veteran of the Civil War, has fought in Europe and Africa, served with the Egyptian forces and then joined a British regiment.

Luther Benson, the temperance orator who died the other day, never mastered his appetite for liquor and, though it was well known that he was a drunkard, he was so prized and loved that he was never accused of cant or insincerity.

While Congress was disputing over the President's war message Mrs. Davis, wife of the Senator, took a look into the Senate gallery, although it was against the rules, and secured the only photographs in existence of some highly exciting scenes.

Rev. A. D. Mayo, who has just returned to Washington from his eighteenth annual tour in the South in the interests of popular education, has traveled 8000 miles, visited 200 prominent schools in sixty towns and given seventy-five lectures.

David Hillhouse Buel, the only son of the late General David H. Buel, who fought with distinction during the civil war, was ordained to the Catholic priesthood Tuesday in Woodstock, Md., by Cardinal Gibbons. His father was a member of the class of '61 at West Point, which was graduated ahead of time, and his grandfather, Dr. Buel, was a well known Episcopal clergyman.

A little life may be sacrificed to all hours's delay. Cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea come suddenly. Only safe plan is to have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry always on hand.

GOOD STORIES FOR OLD AND YOUNG.

GO NORTH, BALD HEAD.

The experience of Rhoderick Dhu Smith, who recently returned from the Klondike region with a big budget of experience, quite a little sum of money and a head of hair which almost qualifies him to take an engagement as a Circassian girl in a circus, is of especial interest to a large contingent of his fellow men and women.

For he is known that Rhoderick, before making his perilous way to the Arctic regions, though otherwise pleasing to look upon and still on the sunny side of 40, was the owner of a head which made theatre ushers, whenever there was a ballot on the program, escort him down to the front row, without even claiming for his seat check.

After a two years' residence in Alaska there has returned a modern Samson, as far as chevelure is concerned, and he declares that the transformation is entirely due to the rigors of the climate in that quarter of the globe.

"The intense cold kills all the germs," he asserts, "and stimulates the scalp, and nature does the rest," and he proudly exhibited his Klondike mane as proof of what nature can do when she takes a fancy, unassisted by washes or oils or unguents.

P. J. McLeod, who has spent 12 years in Alaska and the northwest, although he has not the pleasure of knowing Mr. Smith personally, and did not, therefore, see the sprouting and the horticulture of his capacial crop of modified epidermic cells, still corroborates his story as to the virtues of that clime as a hair producer.

"My hair was always thick," he says, "so I cannot speak from personal experience, but I never saw a bald-headed fellow anywhere around there. To tell the truth, they all look, after they have got to work, as though a razor and a pair of scissors were far more needed than a hair restorer, and if missionary barber could do good work among them."—(San Francisco Call.

NEVER BEEN ON LAND.

Capt. Thomas Carson of Oregon, in order that his children shall never have consumption, has so arranged matters that all of his four children have been born at sea, nor has one of them since set foot on land, although 12 years have elapsed since his first child was born.

Capt. Carson has charge of a merchant ship which steams between Portland, Ore., and Asiatic ports. Although both he and his wife are perfectly healthy, one parent of each of them died an early death of consumption.

The sailor and his wife dreaded having the disease transmitted to their children, and thinking sea air a certain preventative, they resolved that all their children should live at sea until they had reached the age of 21.

The oldest child was a girl who lived only one week and was buried on a voyage between Portland and Hong Kong, but the other three children, Johnny, Teresa and Tommie, aged respectively 10, 8 and 6, are the pictures of health.

They play the common games of childhood in their father's cabin or on the deck, and they never complain about not being allowed to go ashore, because they don't know what fun it would be, never having tried it.—(New York World.

NO HATS AT DINNER.

The question of hats in theaters was settled a generation ago in London, but the whole West end is agitated by the edict of a pretentious restaurant which denies admission at dinner to any lady wearing anything more commodious than an opera or a concert hat.

The manager of this Piccadilly establishment, which is not connected with a hotel, but pretends to be more swagger than any other eating place on earth, writes in defense of his aim to please "a distinguished clientele, many of whom would withdraw if they saw a lady with a hat on."

The squabble began in the terrible dilemma imposed upon London society over the question how to dress for the opera when the performance begins at 4 o'clock and lasting, with an hour and a quarter interval for dinner, till 11 P. M.—(New York Sun.

STARTED OFF WITH A BATH.

Hon. James Emory Byram, a close political chum of the mayor of Philadelphia, launched his boom for the mayoralty in a peculiar fashion. Mr. Byram is the Republican leader of the ward comprising the suburb of Frankford.

He appeared at a public bathhouse in Frankford today and dived head foremost into the pool, wearing a silk hat and a dress suit to the delight of a multitude of spectators.

Before taking his plunge Col. Byram read a speech from manuscript on what he will do for the city when he is chosen mayor and said he was about to take his baptism. He swam around in the pool for half and hour with his silk hat on, illustrating a variety of antics, to the delight of the youthful population.

Col. Byram is a member of select council and has been fighting for six years to secure a public bath in Frankford. With his plunge today into the pool and the mayoralty campaign, the new bathhouse was opened formally. The silk hat he wore will be hung up in the place as a memento.—(New York Sun.

DU MAURIER'S LAIRD IS DEAD.

Sandy, Laird of Cockpen, one of the three musketeers of the brush, endeared to the public by Du Maurier's "Trilby," is dead. That is to say, his original in real life is dead.

The original of Sandy was Mr. T. R. Lauriston. He was an intimate friend of Du Maurier, like most of the characters in "Trilby." One can almost write his biography from the book.

Mr. Lauriston was the son of a manager of a bank at Greenock, in Scotland. His parents intended that he should become a lawyer, but he displayed such an inextinguishable devotion to art that he was finally sent to Paris, where he entered the studio of M. Gleyre, a famous teacher.

Mr. Lauriston was about the same age as Du Maurier's. He attained considerable success as a water color artist and an illustrator.

Du Maurier gives this partial glimpse of Sandy's life after his Parisian days are over:

"The good Laird of Cockpen (who is known to his famous Royal Academician) is preparing for a honeymoon of his own. He has gone to Scotland to be married himself to wed a fair and clever country woman of just a suitable age, for he has known her ever since she was a bright little lassie in short frocks, and he is promising A. R. A. (the pride of his native Dundee) a marriage of reason and well seasoned affection and mutual esteem, and the more sure to turn out a happy one, perhaps, because it is not the romantic love of Dick Dudgeon and Anne Mary. Here's to you, Dick D'Artagnan, Here's to you, Sandy McAllister, gallant, genial, cool and most humorous of Scots! Most delicate and daintily and fancifully of British painters! Drink your health out your family's—may you live long and prosper, Sandy!

Now Sandy has gone, following his friend Du Maurier to the grave after a brief delay.

SHAKESPEARE IN RUSSIA.

Though the Russian government is seeking to oust the British wherever it can, English influence with Russian society at large is apparently not going at all diminishing, but even extending to the provincial public, as the following amusing advertisement, reproduced in the Orlovski Vestnik, will testify:

The theater in Krementchug, southern Russia, has done of late bad business. To overcome and attract the citizens the manager decided to give them no less a piece than "Hamlet," which novelty he announced on big boards in the following terms:

Today.
A Genuine English Tragedy Will Be Given Entitled HAMLET.
Composed by W. Shakspir.
The Favourite of the Local Public.
Important—This piece has had a great success in Kharkoff.

After the unqualified success which this "genuine English tragedy" had both in Kharkoff and Krementchug, we think English managers may well venture to give it also a London stage.—The Anglo-Russian.

The will of William Keimath of Philadelphia proves that upon the death of his wife, $50,000 be given to the Fuel Savings Society of Philadelphia, to constitute the William Keimath coal endowment, the income to be expended in the purchase of coal for free distribution to worthy persons in quantities of not over one half ton to one person at a time.

A. T. Quiller-Couch, the Cornish novelist and essayist, has great difficulty in persuading people that his name is pronounced "Cooch," and says that though he never invented the pronunciation, he can only prevail on a few friends (outside of Cornwall) to believe in it. The poet Cowper, who called himself Cooper, had a similar difficulty. "Couch" (Cooch), by the way, has nothing to do with "repose." It is a Celtic name and signifies "red."

OF BUSINESS

On Thursday, July 7th, at 10.00 A. M., we shall sell at public auction on the premises, the entire brick business property formerly owned and occupied by the Bangor Foundry and Machine Company, and located on Central and Franklin streets. This comprises some of the most desirable brick store property in Bangor and offers an exceptional opportunity to investors.

The property will be divided and sold as follows:

Nos. 1 and 2. Two four story brick stores with flat graveled roof, cellar under each, 12 inch brick walls, 60 feet frontage on Central street by 55 feet deep. These stores are particularly well timbered and suitable for any business and with frontage on one of the most prominent business streets. Stores will be sold separately.

No. 3. Three story brick Mansard roof building with slate roof, cellar under whole building. Lot 59 feet 4 inches on street by 41 feet deep, walls 12 inches thick, front of lower story iron, height of lower story 14 feet 8 1-2 inches in clear. Boiler house adjoining 28 feet 11 inches long by 7 feet 2 1-2 inches wide, covering about 2040 square feet of land and containing suitable boiler for heat and power for entire block.

No. 4. Three story brick building with slated pitch roof, 61 feet 1 1-2 in. street frontage by 41 ft. deep, covering 2506 1-4 square feet of land, cellar under whole building, front and rear walls 15 inches thick in lower story, 12 inches above, separated from adjoining building by brick wall 12 inches thick. Height of lower story 12 feet clear.

No. 5. One story brick building 86 feet 3 inches frontage by 41 feet deep covering about 3536 square feet of land, slated pitch roof, walls 12 inches thick, height in clear 15 feet 2 1-2 inches.

No. 6. One story monitor roof building 50 feet 3 inches frontage by 41 feet deep with offset on back 20 feet long, 8 feet wide; front wall brick, 12 inches thick, rear and lower end walls wood covered with slate. Height 8 feet 10 inches in clear with basement underneath. Passageway from street on north side 7 feet wide. Whole area of lot about 3218 square feet.

No. 7. Two story frame storehouse with basement and shingled pitch roof, 58 feet frontage by 41 feet deep. Frontage north of building 31 feet 6 inches and triangular shaped lot in rear. Total area of lot about 5900 square feet.

No. 8. One story frame storehouse building with pitch roof, 78 ft. front by 60 ft. deep. Height 9 ft. in clear, total area of lot 10,000 square feet, 110 ft. frontage on Franklin street, leaving large extra lot in addition so that occupied by storehouse.

This will be the most important sale of store property in Bangor for years and offers an exceptional opportunity.

Advantageous terms of payment which will be duly set forth at date of sale, will be offered to all wishing to purchase on time.

Full plans, dimensions and particulars together with a plan by architect Manson of the possibilities of the Franklin street blocks, may be seen at our office.

The June term of the law court for the eastern district was finally adjourned on Saturday afternoon.

The regular monthly meeting of the managers of the Home for Aged Women will be held on Tuesday, July 5, at 2.30 p. m. instead of today.

Spring has begun in the country in this section and a bicycle will be seen occasionally. The quality of it depends on the weather, but the grass grows lively, the growing conditions of moisture and warmth having been well adapted to an excellent crop.

The Penobscot Central Street railway has been graded as far as Kenduskeag and this week the work of laying rails will begin. A car loaded with spikes, etc., for track laying is expected to come into the city today. The company intends to have the road completed as far as Corinth by fair time.

F. Mutzow, a well known artist, has been engaged by the E. C. Nichols Clothing company to make illustrations of their store this week. The pictures are to be given away with every dollar's worth of goods purchased.

The steamer Silesia will make a sail down river by moonlight Wednesday evening, the Oldtown Band being on board and giving concerts on the outward trip. Tickets will be placed on sale at Mountaine's, Bangor; Avery's, Oldtown; Wyman's, Brewer; Nichols', Orono; and at the boat at the very low price of 25 cents. This excursion is under the management of Messrs. Reed & Mountaine. The best of order is guaranteed. The steamer leaves Duren & York's wharf at 8 o'clock p. m.

The Dean Boiler Cleaning company, a new corporation the papers of which have been filed in the office of the registry of deeds, the purposes of the company are to manufacture and dealers in heating plants and other machinery. The capital stock is $25,000 with nothing paid. Par value of the shares $100. The officers are Mark Dean of Bangor, president; Norman H. Fogg, treasurer; F. D. Dearth, clerk. The above named officers compose the board of directors. The office and plant of the corporation are in Dexter.

The H. C. Sniper Clothing company has two of the most attractive windows in the city. The first window is draped in flags and bunting with a revolving couch on piece of unusually decorated in bunting, displaying fancy ties, suspenders, etc., with two wax forms in front holding up the display. The west window is dressed in like manner with life-size portraits of Washington and Lincoln at the right marked "past heroes," McKinley and Dewey at the left marked "present heroes" and in the centre a mirror arranged back of a cylinder of bunting marked "future heroes."

RIVERSIDE PARK.

It has been impossible to get the trunk horse, Dugat Tempest, to Bangor in time for this week's performance, so it will not appear at the park until late in the season. For this week the Novelty Sisters in a new act will be featured. In the company are the three Hobson sisters, English jig and clog dancers and vocalists; the two Devilles, sketch artists, and Woodard, telephone spinner.

The performance will be given afternoon and evening, and on the 4th, July 4th, extra attractions added.

At the park on Sunday, at 2.30 and 7.30 o'clock there were concerts by the Bangor band, Harry J. Wood, director. Excellent programs were presented for both events before large numbers of people. Besides the band concert in the afternoon there was a sacred concert in which the members of the Chansonnette choir kindly took part.

DEATH OF GEORGE A. FULLER.

Mr. George A. Fuller, who was associated with the firm of Royer Bros. of Boston for over thirty years as travelling salesman for a pine and New Hampshire, died suddenly in Lynn on June 30 of hemorrhage of the lungs. Mr. Fuller's large circle of friends throughout the section in which he travelled will be pained to hear of his decease, and they will miss the genial whole souled fellow, whom they have known for so many years.

He was a member of the Commonwealth Lodge of Odd Fellows of this city, Howard Council, Royal Arcanum, both of Boston, and an officer of the Lynn Light Infantry, and a member of the Oxford Club of Lynn.

Senator Mills, of Texas, who announced his withdrawal from the campaign for another term, and who was asked to reconsider, has written a letter to his sent in which he says that he will adhere to his original intention and withdraw from the contest.

No quarter will do as much good as the one dime from Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. This is what you get with them: A positive and permanent cure for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Not just temporary relief, but a cure, so that there is no more need of taking the pills. Once used always in favor. Sugar coated, little, easy to take, as mild as milk. One pill a dose. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Preparations For a Big Time in Bangor To-day, the Anniversary of Independence.

An Immense Parade, Races, Band Concerts, Fireworks, Etc., on the Programme.

LET THE EAGLE SCREAM.

Today Bangor will celebrate the glorious Fourth in royal style.

Extensive preparations have been made for this occasion and the prospect is for one of the greatest celebrations which the city has ever seen. Thousands of people are coming to the city from other places and the committee has succeeded, with success, to arrange a program which will furnish entertainment of the most interesting character.

One of the special features of the day will be the great parade of military and civic bodies at 9.30 A. M. Over three hundred of the Connecticut troops stationed at Fort Knox, Co. G, Bangor, and Co. F, Dover; Bangor Cavalry Troop and Hampden Cavalry Co., and Bangor Artillery Co. will represent the military. Fraternal bodies, firemen and the trades will also participate.

The following is

MAIN'S CIRCUS.

Two Exhibitions in Bangor on Saturday.

Walter L. Main's circus appeared in this city Saturday when two performances were given. That of the afternoon had a light attendance but the evening show was well attended.

A number of acts were very clever and interesting, others were very ordinary and some of the foolishness in front of the reserved seats might have been omitted without harming the show. It will be a good idea for Mr. Main to give several of his alleged clowns and get one good one.

The exhibition of trained animals, including lions, elephants, panthers, a bear hound, etc., while not new was good and showed the superiority of the human mind over savage beasts. Prof. Ferra puts the animals through a course of stunts which made one wonder how they could have been so trained.

The bareback performance by the Burns was a fine exhibition of skill and daring. Albert Crandall gave about as amusing an exhibition of mule riding as the circus has ever presented and he not only drew the glad laugh but the glad hand as well.

A prominent feature of the show was the acrobatic act of the Edys, two men and two women, in evening dress. Remarkable skill and suppleness were shown, the smaller one of the women showing especial acrobatic power.

The Zenos in aerial bar revolutions and the three-back riding of Tony Lowande were among the other features which took well with the spectators.

During the performance a gentlemanly urchin passed through the crowd with concert tickets on sale for a "dime apiece or twenty-five cents" and the musical concert was given at the close.

In the menagerie the little baby elephant attracted the attention of the people.

The voting contest for the four bicycles at Myer M. Levy's took place on Saturday at 10 P. M. A big crowd congregated to see who were the lucky winners. The award was as follows: Lady's wheel, Miss Annie O'Brien, daughter of Alderman O'Brien, 1,970 votes; man's wheel, George Daley, 1,418 votes; boy's wheel, Andrew Vara, South Brewer, 1,720 votes; girl's wheel, Della LaCross, South Brewer, 1,175 votes.

Caldwell Sweet, the widely known druggist, has gotten out a vest pocket edition of the special program for today, with an advertisement on the last page, which will be most convenient and will be appreciated by the many customers of the house. They may be had at the store.

THE FESTIVAL ARTISTS.

Announced by Messrs. W. R. Chapman and H. N. Chase.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Messrs. William R. Chapman and Homer N. Chase announce the following named artists as engaged for the Maine Music Festival, to be held in Bangor Oct. 6-7-8, and Portland, Oct. 10-11-12, which constitute as a whole one of the best combinations of great artists ever offered at any music festival in this country:

Mme. Johanna Gadski, soprano, Berlin, Germany.

Miss Charlotte Maconda, soprano, New York city.

Negotiations pending with leading contralto of London, England. (Announcement later.)

Miss Katharine M. Ricker, contralto, Boston, Mass.

Mr. H. Evan Williams, tenor, New York city.

Mr. John M. Fulton, tenor, New York city.

Mr. D. Ffrangcon-Davies, baritone, London, England.

Mr. Gwilym Miles, baritone, New York city.

Miss Harriet A. Shaw, solo harpist, Boston, Mass.

Mr. Hans Kronold, solo cellist, New York city.

Dr. Oscar E. Wasgatt, concert master of Maine Symphony Orchestra, Bangor, Me.

Mr. Arthur Hyde, assistant choral conductor, Bath, Me.

The Maine Symphony Orchestra will be increased to seventy members, which will include the best players from New York city and Boston.

The following artists from Bangor will appear: Miss Emily Merrill, Mrs. E. H. Whitridge, Miss Flossie Guerin, Miss Margaret Walsh, Mrs. W. H. Gardiner, Miss Lucia Alberry, Mrs. W. A. Nelson, Mrs. E. The chorus will number one thousand voices, the whole under the direction of William R. Chapman, of New York city.

In addition to the above announcement many novelties are under negotiation, among which may be mentioned a mammoth military band of one hundred players selected from the best bands of Maine. Other features will be added as soon as negotiations pending are consummated of which due notice will be given.

FROM BAR HARBOR.

The Hot Weather is Driving the City Folks to this Fashionable Resort in Large Numbers—Season Opening Up in Fine Style.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Bar Harbor, July 2. The indications at this time point to a big season for Bar Harbor. For the last two weeks people have been coming as never before in the month of June. The travel to this place over the Maine Central railroad is 1000 larger than last year. The mail clerks say that their mails are larger than last season. The mail into Bar Harbor from the West Saturday was larger than any in one day during the season of 1897, excepting the days when the warships were here.

Five Hallowell trains came to Mt. Desert Ferry Saturday morning, bringing about one hundred and fifty people to this resort, going to the hotels and cottages. The travel to the other resorts is also larger and the mails are heavier by far.

The Whitneys are expected here and day by special car over the Maine Central. The hot weather is driving the people to Bar Harbor, and the war is keeping nobody away, as was expected it would.

The social season, too, has opened sooner than ever before. Dinner parties are now in vogue, and Kebo is ready to entertain the great army of society people already here.

Prince Victor Emanuel of Italy and his military aide-de-camp, Count Carpeneto, attended the garden party of Mr. and Mrs. Chapman on Mt. Desert street on Thursday afternoon and were entertained by Mrs. Wright of Philadelphia Friday evening. These foreign notables will prolong their stay in Bar Harbor.

Mrs. Condon gave a dance Friday evening, which was attended by many society people.

Bar Harbor will probably have more people to entertain than for many seasons. The hotels are open and business is booming.

CALAIS NEWS.

St. Croix Club Prepare for a Grand 4th of July Celebration—Rev. B. M. Mitchel Dead.

[Special to Whig and Courier.]

Calais, July 2. For months the St. Croix Club has had a committee at work making preparations for the grandest Fourth of July celebration that we have ever had.

This general committee has appointed various sub-committees and the plan has enlarged and broadened until it has gone beyond the bounds first planned.

Excursions on trains and boats from every direction are arranged and it is believed that a larger number of people will be in Calais than was ever seen on any similar occasion.

On June 19 occurred the marriage of Howard Eve and Edith Bartlett, both of Calais. All join in wishing them a happy life.

Mrs. Frank Black has been in the city for several days, visiting friends and relatives, and has just gone to Eastport for a short stay before returning to her home in New York.

About four o'clock last Tuesday the roof of the building occupied by Lennon Bros. as a paint shop was seen to be on fire. An alarm was sounded and the fire department reached the spot promptly. Very little damage was done.

Rev. B. M. Mitchell, a Methodist preacher for more than forty years, passed away after a long and painful illness. He was eighty-eight years old and had been retired for some years and lived with his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Osgood, whose home is near the Brook church. He was dearly beloved by a large circle of friends who will deeply mourn his loss.

All the saw mills have shut down for the want of logs, as the drive has not yet got in. It is thought that it may be two weeks or more before the drive arrives so the mills can start up.

Star Course.

A number of refined and intelligent ladies are required to assist in the local work connected with the Star Course. Apply to Mrs. L. A. Palmer, Room 61, Bangor House, after four P. M. daily.

UNION STREET KINDERGARTEN.

REPORT FOR THE YEAR ENDING JUNE 17th, 1898.

The fall term began Sept. 13th with eighteen children. Others kept coming until the whole number entered during the term was forty-eight, with a daily average of thirty-six. Owing to the limited amount of room, a small room on the first floor was offered, and by using that for class work we got along very comfortably. The epidemic of measles affected so many children, that although the winter term opened Jan. 3d, with twenty-five children yet the average being so small, only twelve, it was found best to close at the end of two weeks. Thus the school year was shortened by twenty-seven weeks instead of being thirty weeks long as was intended. The spring term opened April 11th, and forty-eight entered during the term, although many of the sick ones did not return until late. Sixty-eight children were enrolled during the year, a number coming from a great distance on the electric cars, who by the kindness of the conductors came and went with perfect safety. All of the children who entered during the year came without the solicitation of either the teachers or members of the association, and more could easily have been found had there been room to accommodate them. They are a remarkably bright class of children, quickly understanding every subject presented to them.

Miss Fairbanks, Miss Quinby and Miss Durgin served as assistants during the fall term, and Miss Fairbanks during the winter and spring terms, while the young ladies from the training class took charge of classes under supervision. All of the young ladies performed their duties in a capable manner showing their ability and interest for the work.

The programme for the year was based upon the lessons of Nature and the Mother-Play book, taking into consideration the ideas of the changes of seasons and what it involves and the special days of the year. Through work and play, story, picture and song the life of nature and of mankind was reflected. They saw their own family relations in animals, and how everything lives not for itself alone. The planting and arranging of autumn leaves, the gathering and assorting of seeds, the examination of fruits and the beauties of frost and snow, the planting of seeds and care of plants, all brought the children in loving touch with and interest in nature.

As fast as early kindergartens through the country, courses of material have been made. And the aim has been more freedom, expression and individuality in all gift and occupation work, with the result that although the amount of work has not been so great, yet I feel it is more truly the children's own than ever before.

There were several occasions when the parents were especially invited by the children, to attend their exercises, Thanksgiving, Christmas and the closing day in June were the great days of the year. At Thanksgiving time each child tried in some way to give expression of its thankfulness, beside having a jolly good time and treat in kindergarten. But at Christmas their good will had more opportunities for expression, for they not only made presents and had a tree for their friends at home, but remembered the sick ones, especially those at the Children's Home, so that a large basket of things were sent to be enjoyed by the little ones there who could not be with them. Even the mouse in the wood box had a little Christmas tree with things suited to his tastes.

After the Christmas tree was dismantled it still held much of interest. During the short winter term each child helped in sawing off the branches, making miniature forests and playing woodmen, while the smaller branches were cut up to make a pillow for an aching head.

Patriotism reigned high during the spring term. Memorial day was observed and each child grew to honor and love our flag and to understand what it symbolizes.

Thus through the year they by learning to know and understand plants and animals, the work of growing, how to work for themselves and for others, came more in unity with nature, with mankind and with God, the fundamental idea of all kindergarten work.

In spite of the numerous changes in the assistant teacher during the fall term, I feel that the past year has been the most successful in many ways, especially during the last term, and I think it is owing a great deal to the hearty cooperation of the parents. Mothers and fathers, too, were frequent visitors, for hardly a day passed without one or more spending some time with us. It is very gratifying and encouraging to the teacher to have the parents express so much interest and appreciation for kindergarten as has been done this year.

Although we teachers as well as all others are rejoiced to think that at last the kindergarten is to become a part of the public school system, it is with regret that I never my connection, as I suppose it is now necessary, with this association. So many of you ladies have been so ready and willing to do whatever was possible to make it pleasant both for the kindergarten and myself, that I can only give my sincerest thanks and hope that when your responsibility ends your interest for kindergarten will not.

Addie L. Mansur, Director.

Bangor, June 30, 1898.

To the Bangor Kindergarten Association:

There are so many things to tell you about the kindergarten that I shall make no report of the normal class work, except to say that at its close it numbered four, and that I have labored unceasingly throughout the year, to give the young ladies insight into Froebel's system of child culture, working upon the principle that "to know many things slightly is not of much avail; better have one clear, definite thought."

On September 13, 1897, forty-one children were received at the State street kindergarten, and forty-one little faces looked up into mine, bidding me welcome to the wonderfully sweet and sacred work which has been going on in that room even since.

I feel like thanking you most heartily for the decision made last October to discontinue Saturday kindergarten. I believe that added success in my work has been the result, with nearly all the mothers, excepting those of the newest children. I feel in sympathy and every time I go into their homes I learn something new, which helps me in the understanding of their children, and consequently in a juster treatment of them. I understand better today than one year ago, why some come so late to kindergarten, and even though it is as hard as ever to be patient with it, I know that it does little good to reprove the children and possibly spoil the day for them. I wonder now that some come at all, or come as clean as they do, and smile upon provoking, when a child says, "I asked Mamma if I could wash my." I have made over two hundred calls since last October, and every one of them has strengthened the sympathy between home and kindergarten.

One afternoon last March I invited all the mothers to our room for two hours, tea was served and a little entertainment in the way of music prepared. It was a strange afternoon, I assure you. Mothers of all classes were there, some spoke such broken English that it was difficult to talk with them; others would have graced any parlor. Unlike a lot of our efforts they would sit in a row around the room, and when there was no music, the sound of their own voices half frightened them, but I very thought they had a pleasant time, because it gave them a change, and something new to think about. I put them in touch with the work and her children's work, if no more.

We had sixty-five different children during the spring term, and several were refused admittance; forty-six were enrolled at the close of the term, one hundred and one since one year ago last spring, and I was transferred to the Union Street kindergarten. The others ones have been directed by my paid assistant, in an exceptionally gratifying manner, and I am proud to say the children left in the city schools who can
